President's Attitude May

Washington — (CFA) — President Hoover is not borrowing any troubles. The decision of his supporters, namely the "young guard" in the senate, who backed Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin for a place on the important finance committee was not a surrender, but an avoidance.

Mr. Hoover would have brought upon himself and the senate a real row if the youthful senator from Wisconsin had been denied a seat on the finance committee. It would have obstructed consideration of the tariff bill and other pending measures. And, besides, Senator Borah of Idaho served notice that he would carry the fight to the floor and that would have meant an ignominious defeat because the western Republicans and the Democrats would have united.

Senator Smith of Utah who was opposed to the idea of adding Mr. LaFollette to his committee finally voted for the Wisconsin senator. This was taken to mean that while he did not yield his own views he did defer to the wishes of the president that harmony should prevail.

When the tariff bill is out of the way, the finance committee will have lost its bone of contention and it so happens that the report of the finance committee even on the tariff was disregarded by a majority of the senate. In other words, in the days when a committee recommendation was equivalent to adoption, the personnel of the finance committee was of vital consequence. Nowadays it merely is a forum for the expression of different viewpoints and the presence of Senator LaFollette on the financial committee balances the eastern industrial with the northwest agricultural representation.

NEW BALANCE OF POWER?

It is significant that the Hoover supporters in the senate known as the young guard are gradually acquiring the balance of power. Once they decide to unite with the western Republicans, the old guard has to capitulate. The president, in other words, has succeeded in driving to wedge inside his own party between the two extremes—the east and the west. It remains to be seen, however, whether the compromising is on one side or whether the western Republicans can be induced by the young guard to agree to some of its proposals. Certainly, Mr. Hoover himself by his attitude on the Eastman appointment on the Interstate Commerce commission and now his decision on the LaFollette matter has far from given comfort to the regulars, but has on the contrary tied up with the Progressive group. All this strategy has a bearing on senate tactics, but it is not known yet what effect it will have on the conservative wing of the party from whom Mr. Hoover must obtain a re-nomination in 1932. It was the leaning of Theodore Roosevelt toward the Progressive wing of the party which brought about the cleavage in 1912. It would not take much of an excuse for one side or the other to attempt to bring former President Coolidge back into the picture as retaining the Conservative point of view. It will all depend on how successful Mr. Hoover is in getting his legislative program approved. For if by heading out the olive branch to the westerners, he can bring about harmony the conservative Republicans will not be strong enough to un-horse him as the true leader of his party.

Baton Rouge, La. — (C) — Archbishop S. G. Messmer of Milwaukee, 52, the oldest Roman Catholic prelate in the United States, was in a serious condition at a hospital here today as a result of a cold contracted several weeks ago when he came to Chicago, La., to rest at a church school for the deaf. 15,000 Die Of Exposure In China Areas

Peiping, China. — (AP) — Parts of China are being swept by the severest cold in sixty years, with untold suffering and considerable loss of life resulting. The famine areas particularly have been hard hit.

The vernacular press today published dispatches from Suiyuan district in northern Shansi estimating 15,000 aged under-nourished adults and children were dead due to exposure. In the town of Fengchen 2,500 were frozen to death, in Sahsien 2,000 died and in Fowtchen 800 were killed by the cold.

Honan province reported the coldest weather since 1870. The Han river was filled with blocks of ice destroying thousands of flocks. Hundreds of persons drowned. The Rengo News agency said 700 soldiers were frozen during the movement of the Second army. Bodies were sent back to Hankow by freight trains where soldiers and relatives were summoned by beating of gongs to come to the railroad yards and take charge of the bodies.

Peiping police reports said 167 men and 41 women had been found dead here since Monday, most of them frozen.

PALMOLIVE FIRM
FIGHTS STATE TAX

Challenges Right to Assess Taxes Upon Income of Outside Corporation

Madison. — (AP) — The state tax commission's assessment of approximately $200,000 in back taxes against the Palmolive company of Chicago has been challenged by that firm in an appeal filed in federal court here, it was learned today.

In filing the appeal from the decision of the tax commission, the Palmolive company challenges the right of the state to assess taxes upon the income of out-of-state corporations doing business in Wisconsin in proportion to the volume of its Wisconsin business.

Millions of dollars are involved in the question inasmuch as the case is expected to offer a ruling on taxation for such companies. Several months ago the tax commission ruled that the Palmolive company was the state approximately $200,000 for taxes upon the income of its Wisconsin business during 1924, 1925 and 1926. If the decision is upheld by the court the firm will be obliged to pay approximately $200,000 on the business conducted in the state since that time.

A motion by the tax commission to dismiss the appeal has been overruled by Federal Judge Walter Lindley. The tax commission contended that the federal court did not have jurisdiction in the case as appeals from decisions of the tax commission under Wisconsin statutes must be taken into state courts.

PLACE GUARD AT HOME OF "KIDNAPED" YOUTH

Milwaukee. — (AP) — Four policemen were detained today to guard the home of Gilbert Gohres, young West Allis grocer who said was kidnaped, then released, by a gang which had planned to hold him for ransom.

Police Chief Samuel Minturn arranged to interview the young man today to see if he could obtain a more detailed story of his experience. The physicians yesterday said Gohres was too hysterical to amplify his original story.

Gohres told his parents that the "kidnapers" warned him to have $1,000 ready to "pay on demand." This his parents interpreted as an indication there would be another attempt to kidnap their son. At their behest, the guard was ordered.

Missouri Profs Upheld In Sex Questionnaire Inquiry

Washington. — (AP) — The Association of University Professors through a special investigating committee has severely censured the authorities of the University of Missouri for disciplining two members of the faculty who approved the revelation of a sex questionnaire among the students of that institution.

The findings of the committee, published today, denied the charges of President Stratton D. Brooks and the board of curators of the university that the list of questions was shocking to the students and tended to make them lax morally.

"There is little or no evidence," the report of the committee said, "that any student receiving the questionnaire was shocked or insulted by it. There is no evidence that the questionnaire led to sexual immorality or to decreased self-control in the matter of sex behavior on the part

INVOLVED IN GARVIN CASE

Detective Accuses Rival Inspector of Part in Detroit Shooting

Detroit. — (AP) — The Detroit News today said that an investigation carried on by high police officials into the shooting last week of Inspector Henry J. Garvin, head of the police crime and bomb squad, has brought out the charge that the attack was part of the plot of a jealous police inspector in the same department.

The newspaper states that Detective Adolph Van Copenolle of the blackhand squad, Wednesday accused one of the inspectors at police headquarters of having engineered a plot by gunmen to slay Inspector Garvin. Subsequently Copenolle is said to have contradicted his story and charged that the whole affair was a plot on the part of Inspector Garvin to undermine the accused inspector in the eyes of his superiors.

Hand-in-hand with these two divergent accusations the newspaper story states that the charge of another plot—that of the accused inspector and another high official to "hush up" the whole affair by making promises of future favors based on assumed influence with Mayor-elect Charles Bowles, whose administration takes office next week.

CHARGES NOT FILED

Van Copenolle's original charge of a plot against Inspector Garvin, according to the news story, was based on the existence of a bitter feeling of year's standing between Garvin and the accused inspector. The name of the rival inspector is withheld, as formal charges have not been filed.

Van Copenolle's revelations, the story continues, include an account of a conversation with the accused inspector in an automobile about six weeks ago during which the name of Inspector Garvin was mentioned.

Inspector—, according to Copenolle's story as related in the News, snapped out:

"I'm tired of hearing about him (Inspector Garvin) and I'm going to have him bumped off and you're going to help me."

The story says that Detective Van Copenolle and the inspector made the plot then and that same day drove to an east side blind pig frequented by gangsters.

Detective Van Copenolle is then said to have attempted to apprise Inspector Garvin of his rival's plot against him, telling him at the time "I didn't make any arrangements to have you bumped off."

GROUNDED FREIGHT SHIP
SENDS APPEAL FOR HELP

Block Island, R. I. — (AP) — The freight steamer Edward Luckenbach New York to Boston, grounded on Southwest point here at 2:30 this morning in a dense fog and with a heavy swell running. Shortly before 9 o'clock when the coast guard put out to her assistance, the ship's officers reported the craft taking water rapidly by the bow.

Later the Radio Marine corporation station picked up messages from the coast guard cutters Gresham and Henley, stating they were going to the assistance of the Edward Luckenbach.

The cutter Gresham said she expected to reach the ship in about six hours. The Henley expected to reach it earlier, but gave no exact estimate of the time.

The Radio Marine corporation said that after sending out the first call for help, the Edward Luckenbach's radio was in trouble and the operator rigged up a battery set to send out his message. He said the ship was aground near the Block Island lighthouse, but the fog was so thick that persons in the lighthouse said they could not see the ship.

Brookhart Wants To Keep
Public Utilities Off Air

Radio Commission Soon to Consider Protests Against
W. K. Henderson

Washington. — Senator Brookhart of Iowa, Republican, independent, said before the senate interstate commerce committee today that he was considering an amendment to the radio law to bar public utility stations from the air.

The announcement came during a discussion by Chairman Robinson, of the radio commission, of a recent court decision by which station WENR, of Chicago, operated by the Insull subsidiary, was permitted to share a cleared broadcasting channel with Station WLS, also of Chicago, on a half time basis.

Robinson was testifying on the Couzens communications bill, which the committee has under consideration.

"Some of us believe," Brookhart said, "that public utilities have no business on the air. If we amend the

DORMITORY CASE
STIRS U. CAMPUS

Co-ed Alleges She Was Barred Because of Jewish Faith—Sues for $10,000

Madison. — (AP) — The action of a University of Wisconsin co-ed in starting suit against the owners of a dormitory and charging they refused to accept her application because she was Jewish, formed the principal topic of conversation on the campus today.

Alleging breach of contract, a suit was on file in federal district court asking for Miss Mildred L. Gordon, 20, of Chicago, damages of $10,000. She charges that she was refused admittance to Langdon hall after she had reserved a room and been assured it would be held for her. R. D. Malone and the Mendota Building company were defendants in the suit.

In her complaint, the university junior sets forth that she applied for a room in Langdon hall prior to the beginning of the school year, and filled out a questionnaire, answering one question with the statement that she was Jewish.

The application was accepted and a room reserved, the complaint says, adding that Miss Gordon had stationery and engraved cards printed with the hall as her Madison address.

On Sept. 19 when she arrived to begin school and had her trunk delivered to Langdon hall, she was denied admittance and told that all rooms were filled, although she knew there were vacancies, the complaint avers.

It further stated that Miss Gordon is a devout member of the Jewish faith and that through the actions of those in charge she "suffered untold mental anguish, humiliation and mortification."

DANZIG MOURNS SEVERED
TIES WITH FATHERLAND

Danzig, Danzig Free State. — (AP) — Today, the tenth anniversary of the "forcible" severance of Danzig from the German Fatherland, was kept as a day of mourning by the overwhelmingly German population of the city. It was made occasion for patriotic addresses and articles in the press in which hopes of ultimate reunion were revived.

The papers recalled the declaration by Poland's first premier, Ignace Jan Paderewski, 1918, that "Danzig's occupation will be Poland's aim." They emphasized that colonization of the Danzig port and railways was making continuous headway and that Danzig's financial affairs had become increasingly dependent upon Poland's overlordship while competition of the new Polish port, Gdynia, constituted a growing menace to Danzig's prosperity.

FORMER JUVENILE STAR
GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE

Milwaukee. — (AP) — Little Lord Fauntleroy was in jail today. Not long ago the boy actor who delighted the youngsters of Milwaukee two or three years ago, he faced varied charges, ranging from embezzlement to mailbox looting.

Caesar Fee, who is 25 years of age, admitted he had traveled a long, long trail since he trod the boards of Milwaukee's old Shubert theatre as the leading juvenile in a stock company which for many years made his home here.

Dead checks caused the immediate downfall of "Fauntleroy." He drew them on a bank that wasn't to exist, for his father and now him, of the street. Fauntleroy for Caesar went to jail.

law the court can overrule the decisions of the commission." Robinson has testified that before the court action WENR had had two-tenths of time allowed both stations.

Washington. — (AP) — A promise that attention would be given very soon to protests against the use of alleged profane language over Radio Station KWKH at Shreveport, La., was given today to the senate interstate commerce committee by Chairman Robinson, of the radio commission.

Robinson who appeared before the committee as a witness on the Couzens communications bill, told Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, that the commission now had a sworn statement as to language being used.

Dill has been voicing protests on the senate floor against the station, which is operated by W. K. Henderson.

Dill observed that the situation he complains of had been going on for some time, and that it was "getting worse lately," adding he was anxious to know what the commission had not taken action.

Robinson said that "no person had been 'on the carpet' within the last year, but that he had proved an audience of 160,000 wanted the station continued."

The radio chairman also said that two senators and several representatives had been using the language he was accused of.

Dill, however, remarked the language at that time probably was not as bad as now, but Robinson replied there had been considerable testimony about the words used.

"I think if the language were only bilinguistic," the commission probably could do nothing but that if it was obscene, the commission would deny a renewal of the license or revoke it."

Asked whether "hell" and "damn" were obscene, he said:

"I think so, several years ago, but today it's different."

Dill replied that women and children were listening to the station and that it could be heard all across the country.

MAKES FIRST MOVE TO TAKE HUCKINS TO IOWA

Cedar Rapids, Iowa. — (AP) — Requisition papers for the return here of Elmer H. Huckins and his wife, Amelia from Wautoma, Wis., were requested of Governor Hammill today by County Attorney Carl Hendrickson. The Huckinses were indicted yesterday on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses.

As soon as the papers are received, Hendrickson said he would submit them to Governor Kohler of Wisconsin for his signature. He then will go to Wautoma and seek their arrest on bench warrants from the district court here.

S. J. Milner, attorney for Huckins, told Hendrickson today that Mrs. Huckins would surrender without the formality of an arrest or extradition but Hendrickson said he preferred to obtain the papers.

Mr. and Mrs. Huckins' son, George, today was free on bond but continued to rest in a hospital here, where he has been recovering from a nervous condition since his return from Excelsior Springs, Mo., last Sunday.

LOP R. O. T. C. FUND FROM CHICAGO SCHOOL BUDGET

Chicago. — (AP) — The school board has voted to cut from the $57,000,000 school budget the entire sum provided for the R. O. T. C. in high schools.

Elimination of this item—$18,991—was said today by school authorities to effect an investment of about $35,000 by the federal government which pays approximately 55 percent of the cost of maintaining the uniforms and equipment used by the 200 members of the corps in 21 Chicago schools. The cut in the budget was one of several made in an effort to reduce the total.

Mary Pickford Protests
Tax On Mother's Estate

Los Angeles. — (AP) — The motion picture colony at Hollywood today got a glimpse of figures on the earnings of Mary Pickford, who appeared in probate court yesterday and testified about her income in connection with the estate of her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Pickford Smith, who died in March, 1924.

Miss Pickford protested the levy of inheritance taxes against her mother's estate amounting to $38,250 in addition to the $22,000 the state already has collected.

The actress contended that the estate law was not entitled to the additional tax on the ground that $750,000 of Mrs. Smith's $1,150,000 estate was in three trust funds held jointly by mother and daughter, the survivor to inherit all.

MAJOR PART OF COUNTRY
HIT BY COLD

Snow in Some Portions of Wisconsin Block Highway Travel

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Only the Middle Atlantic and southeastern states were immune from a cold wave which spread over the country today.

California and the Pacific coast shivered in subnormal temperatures. Heavy snow fell in the mountains. Blizzards swept eastward and across the western plains and prairies.

A second edition of a blizzard which visited the midwest just before Christmas held that section in its spell and the countryside lay covered with from eight to 13 inches of snow.

Unseasonable rains fell from chilly grey skies in the central Mississippi valley and streams in Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi were out of their banks.

Tumbling mercury heralded the return of winter to New England as falling rain turned into sleet and ice. New York, Philadelphia and other points southward along the Atlantic also reported declining temperatures which during the past few days have brought springlike weather.

DIG OUT OF SNOW

Milwaukee. — (AP) — Southeastern Wisconsin today found itself buried under the heaviest snowfall of the winter, and faced the task of "digging out" main roads and restoring traffic to its normal pace.

Visited by a blizzard yesterday, the one section alone felt the force of the storm. Subzero temperatures were general, but nowhere except in the district south of Found du Lac and east of Monroe was there heavy snow or drifting which caused a delay in train schedules and put automobile traffic almost at a standstill.

In Milwaukee 40 motor pools were kept busy through the night clearing streets. The Electric company kept plows going over its street car lines.

Local Milwaukee road and North-western trains were only slightly behind schedule, but one coast train was five hours late. Air mail service was restored at the county airport after a day's suspension. Pilot John Malone, Northwest Airways, left Minneapolis during the night but could get only as far as Sparta.

BLIZZARD REPEATS

Chicago. — (AP) — Again middle America finds herself robed in the embrace of winter snow.

A blizzard that was almost a twin of that which whirled over the same territory just before Christmas, today had choked highways, snapped communication lines and impeded commerce.

Two men were dead in Chicago, one walking with head bowed against the gale into the path of a train, the other, shoveling snow, being struck down by a blizzard-blinded motorist.

The prediction was that it might be a 26-hour snowstorm, at least in the Chicago territory where traffic already was going forward with difficulty. Seven thousand ready men in Chicago found it a silver snowfall, giving them work with shovels. One thousand men were turned into the loop alone, and the roar of great trucks, carrying away the snow, was added to the daily din of the business district.

18 ARMY PLANES FLY
TO DULUTH IN TEST

St. Ignace, Mich. — (AP) — Continuing their flight from Selfridge field to Spokane, Wash., 18 army pursuit planes left at 12:30 this afternoon for Duluth to control traffic at night on the tower test flight. The three transport planes and one observation ship are expected to go through to Duluth without a stop here. They had returned when the pursuit ships took off after a luncheon stop here.

Washington. — (AP) — It was said at the White House Thursday night that J. Dr. Frank was a luncheon guest of the president.

Mr. Hoover is said to have stated that he would be unable to attend the exercises and that Dr. Frank advised him a convocation would be arranged at any time in the future at which Mr. Hoover could come to Madison.

Seattle. — (AP) — Lloyd L. Patners, arrested in Janesville, Wis., as the "perfumed slugger" who attacked many women today, awaited sentence to prison after pleading guilty to a charge of first degree burglary. Patners was charged with entering the home of James P. Dundo here.

After a series of attacks on women in the northwest, he fled east and was arrested in Janesville.

INVALID DOCTOR
SAVES HOME FROM DAMAGE BY FIRE

Although an invalid and confined to a wheel chair for the past 15 years, Dr. George Donaldson, 70, of Shiocton, Friday morning probably saved his home from being badly damaged by fire by pulling himself through the smoke filled house to the back porch to summon help.

His cries were heard by Mr. and Mrs. Mike Mack, nearest neighbors, who summoned the fire department. Mr. Mack tried to enter the home, but was unable to locate the blaze due to the dense smoke.

The fire started from an electric pad on the bed in the room of Miss Harriet Donaldson, a daughter. She is a teacher at the Shiocton high school.

The bed and other furniture in the bed room was slightly damaged and some damage was caused in other rooms by water and smoke.

Woman Hits
At Senate's
Lobby Group

Washington. — (AP) — Gladys Moon Jones, the only woman to be questioned by the senate lobby committee, went on the stand with a statement today in which she sharply criticized the committee's procedure and asserted it had "degenerated into a mockery of the bill of rights."

Mrs. Jones, publicity worker for the U. S. Publicity Sugar association, which opposes a rise in sugar tariff rates, said the committee could have performed a public service but had only succeeded in warning "vicious lobbies to be more secretive." She added that the committee ought to look into the activities "of those whose years of lobbying experience has caused them to replace fireproof filing cases with modern incinerators."

She also asserted that the chief purpose of the committee seemed to have been to create political difficulties for President Hoover and to whitewash the 25 years activities in Washington of the domestic sugar interests.

Chairman Caraway had a copy of the statements when he entered the committee room. He sat down at the table, read it and laughed.

"You weren't supposed to see that," Mrs. Jones told him jokingly. "Well, nobody will read it any how," Caraway said, "so it makes no difference."

Mrs. Jones told the committee her salary from the sugar association was $230 a week and that it also paid the office expenses which ranged between $400 and $700 a week.

The witness said she issued news releases advocating a low sugar duty in the tariff bill. She added that she also had handled publicity for the American Chamber of Commerce of Cuba, Fleischman Yeast and the Ford Motor company.

CHARGES POLITICS

In her statement Mrs. Jones said the committee was guilty of playing politics by striking "through witnesses at any political opponent, whose name may have been mentioned in private letters."

In explaining her connection with Ford publicity, she said it was handled for an agent of the company in Cuba. Her salary from the American Chamber of Commerce of Cuba was $1,322 a month, she said.

A letter she wrote to H. C. Lakin, president of the Cuba company, was produced and Mrs. Jones asked by what right the committee had a copy of her letter.

"Well, we have it," Caraway said, replying that they would argue the matter later.

"I'd like to," the witness replied. The letter was obtained by a committee investigator from Lakin's files.

30 Paper Mill Executives At Conference Here

ONE DAY REST IN SEVEN LAW IS DISCUSSED

Industrial Commissioners in Charge of Gathering at Courthouse

Thirty paper mill executives, representing most of the 57 paper mills of Wisconsin, were in session at the courthouse here this morning for a discussion of the one-day-rest-in-seven law which is being enforced in paper mills by the Wisconsin Industrial Commission.

F. M. Wilcox, chairman of the industrial commission and R. G. Knutson, another member of the commission, were in charge of the meeting, which was sponsored by the commission. Mr. Knutson and Mr. Wilcox presented the commission's side of the problem.

"We are meeting the greatest opposition in the enforcement of this law from labor itself," said Mr. Wilcox. "Labor is frank in its opposition by pointing out that it needs the money which it can earn by working extra hours on the day when they are supposed to rest."

"This condition is brought on by the economic difficulties of the present day which include considerable unemployment and a lack of money. The laboring man is willing to work long hours and seven days a week for the extra money which it will bring him and the added comforts he can bring to his family as a result."

"Nevertheless we must face this problem squarely and meet it without flinching because this kind of action is imperative to stave off worse conditions which might result if we do not."

ONLY PAPER MILLS
Mr. Knutson told the paper mill executives that the commission is fully aware that the paper mills are the only ones in which the one-day-rest-in-seven law is being enforced, but he said that the commission already is making plans to bring about enforcement in other lines of work as soon as the paper mills are operating under the plan.

"We realize that we face a big problem in the enforcement of the rest law in other industries as well," Mr. Knutson stated. "We do not know just where we will begin or what we will do. One of the big problems we will face in enforcement of the law in its application to drug stores, gas stations and garage employees. But there will be tackled in turn as soon as possible. The commission decided, when it was faced with the prospect of enforcing the law, that it would take one industry at a time and whip it into shape."

The one-day-rest-in-seven law was enacted in 1919 by the state legislature, but until 1926 it was enforced only by the district attorneys of each county. Finally the industrial commission received so many complaints about the non-enforcement of the law that it asked the attorney general to determine whether it is responsible for enforcement. The attorney general ruled that the commission is responsible for enforcement of the law and that body immediately set about making plans for the work.

A conference of paper mill owners was called in November of that year and an advisory committee of paper mill executives and employees was appointed to confer with the commission regarding the law.

MAY MODIFY
Under the law the commission is given the power to make any modifications which it deems necessary to gain enforcement and to prevent hardships on any industry.

The committee and the commission finally agreed to make three modifications in the law and in February, 1929, the paper mill owners were instructed to proceed to obey the law. The modifications provided that some workmen would be permitted to put in three hours on Sunday on necessary repairs; permitted the employers to grant one day of rest in every calendar week instead of every seven days; and exempted paper and pulp superintendents from the provisions of the law.

During the time the law was enforced the employers were instructed to keep records of the difficulties they encountered and these reports were turned into the commission. The reports indicated that the Kimberly-Clark corporation has been one of the paper mills which has met successfully put the one-day-of-rest law in operation.

Commissioner Wilcox urged the paper mill executives to follow the spirit of the law by not requiring workmen to put in extra time on Sunday unless there was an absolute necessity for the work to be done.

W. J. Peacock, head of the persona personnel department of the Northern Paper Mills at Green Bay, told the paper mill men that his mill had met with unusual success in the application of the law by appealing directly to the workmen for cooperation.

"We found that by pointing out to the men that the law was intended primarily for their benefit they were willing to meet it more than half way in an effort to avoid violation," Mr. Peacock said. "Our understanding of the law was that it was intended to give workmen Sunday as a day of rest and working at that time they have managed to get most of our repair work so that it can be done on Monday instead of Sunday mornings. We have met with unusual success."

The meeting took a recess at 12:30 and was to reconvene again at 2:30. A list of the members of the special advisory committee were present at the meeting Friday. Those on the committee are: D. C. Liver-

MUSICAL-VOICED SIREN LOSES ITS BURLINGTON JOB

Burlington—(AP)—Plaintiffs of volunteer firemen today brought a spurning of aesthetics and a promise that the delicate notes of the city alarm whistle would be replaced in the future by something less artistic and more audible.

The volunteers had complained bitterly that they never got to the fire because they didn't know about them. The reason was the whistle. Yesterday, the council agreed to exchange for its plaintive piping the old hoarse shriek of a siren.

Blackstone No Longer Guide At Law College

Chicago—(AP)—As far as the college of law at Northwestern University is concerned, the reign of Blackstone over the legal world is ended. "Blackstone's day is not our day," declared Dean Leon Green, "and his law cannot be our law."

"Together with Blackstone will go other alpha stars of the traditional legal firmament, notably Littleton and Coke."

"The move means," said Dr. Walter Dill Scott, "that the lawyer will become a social scientist."

POSTAL RECEIPTS FALL OFF IN 1929

Lower Rates and Less Business Activity Blamed for Decrease

Postal receipts for 1929 totaled $175,956.97, a decrease of $1,853.30 over 1928 when receipts were $177,810.27, according to W. H. Zuehlke, acting postmaster.

Mr. Zuehlke said that the decrease was about what he had estimated it would be. "The loss was caused, he said, first through a reduction in the postage rates and second through a general falling off in business."

Receipts for 1929 were divided as follows: amount of postage stamps, special delivery stamps, special handling stamps, postage due stamps, stamped envelopes, special registered envelopes, newspaper wrappers and postal cards sold for use at the local office, $161,105.97; excess on this sale of stamps, $57.92; amount of postage at the pound rates collected on second class matter mailed by publishers and news agents, $5,227.53; amount of postage collected on mail without stamps affixed, $4,931.95; amount received for waste paper, twine, etc., $46.10; box rents $1,636.85.

POLICE ARE SURE ASSAULT SUSPECT WILL GIVE SELF UP

Chicago—(AP)—It seemed hardly possible that Charles Yokobit as could long evade arrest on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, for Yokobitas, so far as anyone knew, was at large in the open wearing little more than his summer underwear.

Lolling about in dishabille, Yokobitas quarrelled with his roommate, one Charles Wises and struck him on the head with a chair. Without taking time to clothe himself, Yokobitas fled.

The police were inclined to await developments. It was their confident belief that Mr. Yokobitas would find the snow and cold little to his liking, under the circumstances, and would present himself for arrest at any convenient time that had a good head of steam circulating in the radiators.

ONEIDA CHAIRMAN RENEWS HIS ATTACK ON INDIAN BUREAU

Let Public Know Details of Red Men's Treatment, Skenadore Asks

A statement issued yesterday from his home on the Oneida Indian reservation, William Skenadore, chairman of the Oneida bureau, attacked the United States Indian bureau and outlined reasons why he and his people are advocating abolishment of the department.

Mr. Skenadore points out that the recent senate investigation revealed that the present system of handling the Indians is faulty. He said there are many phases of the Indian problem which should be revealed not only to the investigating committee but to the public at large so that the voters would know how the Indians are being treated.

The bureau is so powerful, Mr. Skenadore charged, that no legislation on matters regarding Indians could be put through congress without the bureau's sanction. Mr. Skenadore's statement follows:

"We think the public should be furnished and is entitled to all the facts available, why we Oneida Indians of Wisconsin believe that it is best for the Indians to have the Indian bureau abolished, as gleaned from the reports authorized and ordered to be printed by the United States senate.

"The facts it offers are such that no American of conscience can lay it aside and forget. Nor can he comfort himself with the excuse of exaggerations offered by reckless and irresponsible individuals, for behind these reports are statements from senators, representatives, professors of law, professors of education, professors of sociology, agricultural economist, director of the bureau of tuberculosis control, and scientific specialists. These men and women are not reckless, irresponsible individuals.

"At the outset of the senate hearings, Congressman James A. Frear of Wisconsin told the senate committee on Indian affairs of his own position. That he had no grudge against the bureau as was suggested, that he had no feeling against the bureau or against any official of the bureau, excepting as to its relation to this Indian question; that he had no hesitation in speaking his mind on that subject there or elsewhere, and had done so.

SYSTEM FAULTY, SAYS FREAR

"But after the investigation he has had, and it has been as thorough as he believed the average member of the committee could make under the system as conducted has been absolutely faulty; that it reaches no conclusions for the good or benefit of the Indian and in fact there are certain things connected with the present management that ought to be exposed not to the committee alone, but ought to be known to the country; and if that is known to the country, he believes there will be either an abolishment of the bureau or a substitution of some other organization to handle Indian matters.

"When Congressman Frear was put upon the Indian affairs committee of the house of representatives, one of the first things that called his attention to Indian affairs was that every bill had to go to the Indian bureau before being taken up by the committee. Of the first 35 bills that came to their committee, 24 of them were recommended by the Indian bureau. One that did not have its endorsement was brought to the senate committee and was fought by the officials of the bureau.

BUREAU DOMINATION

LEGISLATION

"That impressed him with the thought that you cannot get legislation through congress without having the endorsement of the bureau, that everything in connection with Indian work that came up afterwards was in line with that course, for the bureau absolutely dominated legislation.

"Next he learned that there was a billion seven hundred million dollars in property that was held in trust by the bureau, belonging to these Indians. Of that amount $20,000,000 was their money. That is from the bureau statement. That is a tremendous responsibility with the personal control that the Indian bureau has over the person of the Indian.

"The next step occurred while he was a member of the committee almost at the initial meeting. An attempt was made in the house to put through what was previously authorized by the committee, called the Navajo bridge proposition. He referred to that because it was indicative of other things that followed, and it shows the disposition of the Indian bureau toward the Indians, as its wards.

"He charged on the floor of the house at the time that the Navajo bridge bill was before it, that it was not for the benefit of the Indians; that it took $100,000 from the limited funds. The statement was then made upon information received from others that the Indians would have no benefit from it whatsoever; that it was without justification, although with the recommendation of the Indian bureau.

FREAR INSPECTED BRIDGE SITE

"Congressman Frear was thereupon charged by the former commissioner Burke with having no knowledge of the subject, and that was true, excepting what he had learned from others. He found out afterwards that at the same time a senator who is sitting at the table of the senate hearings, taking in his statement, who knew the proposition, and another senator in debate said the Navajo bridge bill was highway robbery of the Indians. Such confirmation from senators made him know that his judgment was not entirely wrong.

"The following year, in 1927, Congressman Frear drove out to that bridge site, on the Colorado river, and he drove 40 miles without seeing anyone, on crude roads, through the sands of the desert on the north side down to the ferry and he then drove on the lower side of the river for 20 or 30 miles without seeing more than two Indian hovels. That was a bridge to be for the benefit of the Navajo Indians.

"The secretary of the interior recommended it and said it was for the benefit of the whites as much as for that of the Indians. He was right about it, says Congressman Frear, for it was for the benefit of neither. It was purely for the benefit of tourists. It is known there for tourists generally who drive from the south side to the north side, or the other direction, from one side to the other. There are no people there, no Indians, no whites, nothing anywhere around. For this bridge the Navajos were to pay $100,000, under the recommendation of the former Commissioner Burke.

WILL NEED $300,000 MORE

"That is not the worst of it, says Congressman Frear, the hundred thousand dollars which the Indian bureau recommended to be charged up against the Indians as reimbursement was a minor item for the Indian rights organization of Philadelphia, which is a very conservative society, as you may know, made an examination of the same location and they reported that not only was the bridge charge without any justification, without any benefit to the Indians, but that $300,000 more would be required for highways on the Navajo reservation for approaches, without any use to the Indians or the white people of that locality as a tourist bridge.

"When the Navajo bridge bill first came up in the house, he was requested as stated, to go out and verify the sites himself and see whether it was true, and he found every statement made against the bridge was true. That it was not for the benefit of the Indians at all, that they did not get a dollar's worth of benefit, and not one Indian in a thousand will ever go over that bridge.

From the Navajo bridge Congressman Frear went down to the Pima reservation and he believes that that is worse in its gross injustice. He brought some pictures of the Pima bridge that last time he was before the senate committee hearings on Indian affairs. On the medal or bridge inscription there was the name of a gentleman who sat opposite him, Mr. Merritt, formerly assistant commissioner of Indian affairs, stating that he helped to build it.

MERRITT DEFENDED BRIDGE

"Mr. Merritt had followed Congressman Frear out West and Mr. Merritt made speeches in San Francisco and elsewhere stating that the bridge was of great benefit to the Indians on the Pima reservation. That bridge is built of stone and cement for a distance of a quarter to a third of a mile, across a long, low, flat piece of ground, a beautiful tourist bridge purely, the main line highway that goes to El Paso. That bridge was never intended to be for the benefit of the Indians; he got this information not from the whites but from the Indians themselves, and from the missionaries and others, who told him that not one Indian in a thousand would use the bridge.

"Congressman Frear thought it interesting why not one Indian was called into Washington by the Indian bureau, or its representatives, to testify to the facts regarding those bridges. The Pima reservation Indians were like the Navajo Indians, all against both bridge propositions. There were beautiful electric lights, it was an ornamental bridge, one of the handsomest bridges you can find anywhere. It is equivalent to something that you might expect up at Niagara Falls.

"Senator Lynn J. Frazier who was presiding in the senate committee hearings said that some of the members of his committee had covered about the same trip that Congressman Frear had gone over the summer before last, and he believed that the bridge was taken down when Senator Frazier was there.

"Congressman Frear intimated that what he had presented were mere incidentals and did not refer to other bridges, or about reimbursable irrigation projects where the Indians were not benefited and that others were more familiar. He thought, however, that over $30,000,000 had been charged by congress reimbursable against the Indians. Much of that, he believed was fraudulent and fraudulent as these bridge propositions, often supported by the Indian bureau and the bridges generally are distinctly fraudulent and scandalous.

FREAR CHARGE NOT DENIED

"Then assistant commissioner of Indian affairs, E. B. Merritt, was present at the senate hearing when Congressman Frear made the above stated charge and the record does not disclose that Mr. Merritt had denied the above mentioned allegations.

"Congressman Frear recommended that should the senate committee on Indian affairs undertake the then proposed investigation of the administration of Indian affairs, that the committee should determine what amount was rightfully reimbursable and what amount is not, and where the Indians have no return at all, where they are not interested, that the reimbursable charge should be and ought to be wiped out and congress ought to repeal the laws so far as it relates to the Indians.

"Last June, says the report of May 1, 1929, the secretary of the interior

This document prepared under Secretary Weeks' direction and not yet made public, describes the wastefulness and in many cases the collapse of numerous irrigation and reclamation projects of the Indian bureau—projects paid for from Indian tribal funds or charged against the Indians to a total of more than $31,000,000. One quotation is given here as a sample. It tells of the Fort Peck, Montana, irrigation project:

"It would be difficult to conceive of a more hopeless situation than that presented by the Fort Peck reservation project. It is the opinion of the advisers that the only possible function this project can serve is that of a monument to the futility of attempting to build an irrigation project without water supply, and in a country where the necessity of water for irrigation at all is questionable. The inconsequential results attained as compared with the large expenditures, nearly $1,000,000, present a spectacle that is really appalling and humiliating."

Badger Launches New House Attack On Prohibition

SCHAFER SAYS IT LEADS TO CORRUPT AGE

"Constitution Changed into a Criminal Statute Book," He Declares

Washington—(AP)—The assertion that prohibition has "ushered in an age of corruption, intolerance, disrespect for law and contempt for government such as this nation never before witnessed" was made today in the house by Representative Schaefer, Republican, Wisconsin.

Making a charge that the "constitution has been changed from a charter of rights and liberties into a criminal statute book," the Wisconsin representative asked:

"How can people respect a constitution that makes the act of temperance a crime?"

"You must choose between prohibition and the Christian religion," he said. "You cannot have both, for they are eternal opposites."

"An unbridgeable gulf separates one from the other, with God and Christ standing on one side and the devil on the other."

Without mentioning names, Schaefer said "the recent hysterical outburst of the four horsemen of the prohibition forces indicates the demoralization in their ranks and that they have reached a realization of the failure of the sumptuary prohibition laws."

He suggested that the "four horsemen" turn their "devotional guns and attention" to the states of Georgia, Idaho, Texas and Nebraska, where a deplorable condition exists today as a result of prohibition.

Senator Harris lives in Georgia, Borah in Idaho, Sheppard in Texas, and Howell and Norris in Nebraska. All are dry leaders, and have taken a part in the recent dispute.

LAWLESSNESS GAINS
"In these states," said Schaefer, "under federal prohibition bootlegging, drunkenness, and drunken vehicle drivers have increased tremendously; fundamental rights guaranteed to our people under the constitution flagrantly violated; lives snuffed out without due process of law by irresponsible and fanatical enforcement agents. The privacy of life and sanctity of the home guaranteed under the constitution ruthlessly violated."

Asserting that the "unwholesome conditions in the country resulting from prohibition had weakened the 'dry' case," he declared that "dry" leaders "are now endeavoring to open up an avenue of escape from their untenable position by attacking those charged with enforcing the federal prohibition laws."

"Statements appearing in the press," he continued, "indicate that the dry crusaders realize the fact that information obtained by the federal crime commission would weaken the position of those favoring a continuation of the prohibition laws."

WANTS OPEN HEARINGS
"From a modification standpoint open hearings by the crime commission would be wholesome and enlightening. The people would have a better opportunity of obtaining additional first hand statistics indicating the general lawlessness and disrespect for law existing throughout the country today as a result of the sumptuary dry laws."

"Certain attacks on the crime commission are indefensible, such as the demand for the removal of one member who called attention to a phase of lawlessness violating sacred rights and liberties guaranteed to our people under the constitution long before the eighteenth amendment was ever conceived."

"The failure of prohibition is inherent in its principle and not due to wrong or faulty methods of enforcement. So long as the American people refuse to recognize the act of prohibition as evidence of moral guilt, prohibition will be a failure."

Schaefer declared that Dr. Clarence True Wilson of the Methodist Board of Temperance, and other dry leaders demand that the prohibition law be amended to make the buyer equally guilty and added they insisted upon widening the "already impassable gulf between themselves and their God on the drink question."

Borrow $20,000

County Needs Money to Pay Operating Expenses Until Next March

Twenty thousand dollars was borrowed at the Citizens National bank Thursday by Mick Mack, chairman of the county board, and John E. Hantschel, county clerk. The funds will be used to pay county expenses until the tax money for 1936 is collected next March. Mr. Hantschel estimated Friday that the county will be forced to borrow more money before next March to pay the county's operating expenses.

Last year the county was not obliged to borrow funds to carry it over until the taxes started coming in but in January of the previous the county borrowed $40,000. This year, Mr. Hantschel said, the county is faced with the necessity of borrowing operating funds because the available cash has been used to pay for the addition to Riverview sanatorium. However the amount paid on the building will be repaid in March when the levy made by the county board in November for the completion of the sanatorium addition is available.

A jury in circuit court Thursday evening returned a verdict in an automobile accident damage suit brought by Irving Schmidt, Hortonville, against Myrtle Miller, administrator of the estate of John Miller, in which it held that both drivers of the cars in the crash were guilty of contributory negligence.

Schmidt suffered injuries and his car, driven by George Steffen, Hortonville, was badly damaged when it collided with a machine driven by John Miller. The accident took place on Highway 10 between Hortonville and Greenville in May, 1927. Schmidt was riding with Steffen.

The jury also found that Schmidt's total loss was $550 and that if the judge decided to award damages to Schmidt, it felt he should receive $100. JUDGE CENSURES PROSECUTOR IN BRIBERY HEARING

"You're Expected to Yield to Court Without Comment," Geiger Says

Milwaukee—(AP)—Censure of the federal district attorney by Federal Judge F. A. Geiger shared interest today with the alibi of Ben Finkle, dry agent on trial for accepting bribes.

Daily reports which the government made no attempt to impeach, were offered as the defense key stroke. They indicated that during whole weeks when Joe Peasin, government witness, testified that he had paid Finkle sums ranging from $300 to $1,000, the agent either was out of town or was in places other than where the payments are alleged to have been made.

It was after their introduction and during the cross-examination of Finkle, that District Attorney Levi Bancroft was rebuked.

Under cross-examination Finkle was asked by Mr. Bancroft when he married.

"Oct. 25, 1928," Finkle replied. "Whom did you marry?" asked the prosecutor.

"I object your honor," Mr. Leahy interjected.

"I desire to show that the defendant isn't married," Mr. Bancroft snapped. The following colloquy ensued:

Judge Geiger—What is the purpose of this type of cross-examination?

Mr. Bancroft—I want to impeach the testimony and credibility of the defendant as a witness.

Judge Geiger—You can't go into collaterals matters.

Mr. Bancroft—Then I don't suppose there is any need to try the defendant at all.

Judge Geiger—I don't propose to take that type of comment from any attorney in this court.

Mr. Bancroft—Your honor, I didn't mean any disrespect by that statement.

Judge Geiger—How could that statement be interpreted any other way? We did you say?

REBUKE BANCROFT
Mr. Bancroft—I said I didn't suppose there was any need of trying the defendant at all.

Judge Geiger—And you repeat it! You're expected to yield to this court without comment. You may proceed.

Mr. Bancroft—"I have no further questions to ask."

Both defense and prosecution rested just before court adjourned after Mr. Bancroft had sought by several means to show "Finkle's general disposition as to the acceptance of bribes," and to challenge his veracity as a witness under oath, most of which efforts were ruled out of order, but not without the jury sharing their full import.

The prosecutor asked Finkle if he recalled the Beaver Dam investigations and raids. Finkle said he had nothing to do with the investigations but that he served some of the search warrants. He was asked whether he knew Al Peotter and the said "no."

"Didn't you call him the day before the raids and meet him at the corner of the Federal building here?" This question had reference to an alleged "tip off" system in which Peotter was charged with being the go-between.

Sustaining the defense counsel's objection, Judge Geiger asked the purpose of this line of cross examination.

"I want to show the defendant's general disposition as to the acceptance of bribes," said Mr. Bancroft. "My purpose is the impeachment of his character."

Judge Geiger said that Finkle was not charged with any bribery other than the five specific counts mentioned in the indictment against him.

"Do you remember when you went to Green Bay with Agents Strawn and Bennett?" Finkle was asked. Mr. Leahy objected and again was sustained.

"I desire to show that there was an arrangement for money which was paid," Mr. Bancroft explained.

FRANCE, ITALY FAIL TO AGREE ON ARMS MEET

Paris Note Rejects Proposition of Naval Parity With Italians

Rome—(AP)—Italy and France will go to the five power naval conference at London, convening Jan. 21, with problems peculiar to themselves unsettled, and the lines of disagreement in their viewpoints drawn more definitely than at any time before.

Publication here of the gist of the French note of Jan. 3 to the Italian government disclosed that the Paris government rejected the Italian proposition of naval parity, a fundamental Italian thesis for further negotiations.

It was made known that the foreign ministers regarded the French reply as a rupture of negotiations which have gone on for many weeks between the two countries. The failure, whether momentary or permanent, gave rise to doubt of success in this capital about that part of the London naval program specially affecting France and Italy. The official attitude generally was pessimistic.

There still is possibility that an agreement in the person of Henry Dine Grandi, Italian foreign minister, meets Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, at the meeting of the league of nations council at Geneva. In a few days, but the decided tone of the French note is taken here as precluding any such settlement.

NOT IN ACCORD
The impression in Rome since receipt of the French note is that the French idea is not in accord with the true spirit of disarmament.

Italy proposed Dec. 21 that Rome and Paris arrange a preliminary conference in order to settle their own private difficulties prior to the London conference, much as Great Britain and America are supposed to have settled theirs.

Italy proposed naval parity to France, but left it to France to name any limitation she saw fit, to which Italy would adjust herself. It was Italian proposal, once made, persuaded Italian leaders that limitation of armaments should be done individually by different nations who then would agree to keep within the limited program they themselves fixed.

Italy believed in a relative instead of absolute idea of limitation, believing that armament should be limited relatively in proportion to the naval strengths of other nations, since otherwise the nations of the London might become an armament instead of a disarmament conference.

NEED FOR BREAD IS BRITISH MOTIVE IN SEA POWER DEMAND

Country Has No Greed for Empire, University Authority Explains

EDITOR'S NOTE: Post-Crescent through N.A. Service, world's largest newspaper feature organization, presents here the second of three articles on "Anglo-American Naval Rivalry" by Charles Hodges, associate professor of politics, New York University, and authority on international relations. With the all-important naval conference in London about to open, an understanding of the fundamentals of sea power rivalry is essential to all who read the news of the conference's progress. Professor Hodges brings to his subject authority, knowledge and experience. He was head of the Geneva staff of the American committee of the League of Nations in 1927, and a member of the special committee on League of Nations publications, 1927-1928. In 1918 he represented the U. S. Shipping Board in the Far East.

The dominating fact in Britain's world outlook is the security of empire.

This is something more fundamental than even the political future of what is possibly the foremost world power today. The livelihood of 45,000,000 people, packed by modern industry into an area equal to that of the state of Oregon.

Not greed for empire but fear for bread, we are told, sums up the British case.

The Englishman's loaf of bread is the most cosmopolitan on earth. Six out of every seven come from overseas. Britain draws upon the world's granaries 11 months out of the 12.

January cargoes come from the Pacific coast; those of February and March, from Argentina. Then, half way round the globe, grain flows from Australia in April; from India in May, June and July. American shipments of winter grain move in July and August—spring wheat in September and October. Russian grain, when there is an export surplus, pours through the Black sea in the fall. Canadian wheat again completes the cycle in November.

Altogether, the United Kingdom takes 226,000,000 bushels of wheat out of the total world imports of about 700,000,000.

The starvation threat of the German submarine blockade is still an admirably nightmare. "Junked" ships and cargoes rotting at the bottom of the sea may not shock like the ruined villages of France and Belgium," the British foreign office bluntly told the allies in 1923, "but they are equally material damage caused by German aggression and represent equally heavy losses of national wealth.

This vulnerability is summed up in the statement that Great Britain can support herself for only seven weeks in the event of a successful interruption of her world contacts. These constitute virtually an organization of British business at home and abroad to provide sustenance for this island people and raw materials for the machines they tend—the export of their manufactured product bears the brunt of the bill.

This challenging dependence on empire and foreign lands stands out in bold relief when we look at working day Britain. Only 7 per cent of the British people live by agriculture. Russia has 72 per cent, Italy 56 per cent, France 41 per cent, and even super-industrialized Germany 31 per cent.

Another 7 per cent of Britain's millions are in mining. Two-thirds, however, are involved in the business of being "a nation of shopkeepers"—49 per cent engaged in manufacturing, 14 per cent in trading, and 1 per cent in transport.

DOES SIXTH BUSINESS

All in all, possibly one-third of Britain's agricultural, mining and industrial production is exported.

Naturally, Britain is the world's foremost international trader. She does approximately one-sixth of the world's gross turnover, now roundly estimated at 65 billions of dollars.

This business abroad, annually in excess of 19 billions of dollars, represents 17 per cent of the world's movement of imports from 13 per cent of the exports. From the standpoint of security, this has rested down to the present moment upon British sea power.

Behind, there lie the huge financial stakes of Britain. These investments are more widely distributed over the globe and far exceeded in value those of any other lending country. As the world's banker, Britain's financing of international development aggregates 22 billions—chiefly outside of Europe in far-flung loans from Canada to Singapore.

The sun, which, we are told, never sets on the British Empire, shines down upon a venture in the reality holding of the nations that is unique.

NATION HOLDS FOURTH

One-quarter of the earth's surface is settled or held by the British people. A never "commonwealth of nations" and old colonial empire combined in this changing world, it feels every turn of world politics.

That "hub of the empire," London, bears responsibility, self-assured in the course of centuries of expansion, for the destiny of a fourth of humanity.

Apart from the strategic holdings in the old world from Gibraltar to the Levant, which total 27,000 square miles, Imperial Britain lies predominantly in the three other continents.

The Asiatic empire, centering upon India, is two-thirds the size of the United States proper, which may be taken as 3,000,000 square miles; the population, however, is three times as great.

The African empire is almost one-third larger than the United States; but it has less than half the population.

British America, again, is a third greater in area; but it contains only one-tenth as many inhabitants.

Australia, sprawling across the South Pacific, even is greater than the United States in area; but here, too, the population is far less—one-fifteenth.

The vast temperate zone holdings, as yet but sparsely settled, offer one problem to the British peoples. The great tropical empire, crowded with the colored races under British tutelage, another.

RESOURCES ARE VAST

If there are responsibilities attached to the control of this world stake—the resources and commerce of a quarter of the earth cannot be lost to sight. There are but few products—so long as British sea-power is unimpaired—for which Britain must depend upon through alien hands. From tin, nickel, chrome, asbestos and mica to rubber, wool, diamonds and gold, the British Empire is in an enviable position. Cotton, copper, nitrates, sulphur and tobacco list the major weak spots.

Commercially speaking, the overseas territories supply one-third of British imports and take nearly one-half of her exports. The trade of the colonial empire, 37 colonies, apart from the dominions, has a yearly turnover alone of two and a half billions. Empire trade, fostered by imperial preference, gives an economic solidarity which Britain values to the full when confronted with America's competition in foreign markets and tariff walls protecting that nation's own home market.

British investment since the World War has been on the average 10 times as great within the empire as in foreign countries.

SHIPPING HER LINK

The British Empire is really 80,000 miles long—the sea routes traversed by British ships would go more than three times round the globe if stretched into a continuous line.

British shipping represents beyond doubt the most vital part of Great Britain. Every third merchant ship afloat flies the British flag—23,000, and out of the 67,000,000 tons, all told, which comprise the world's mercantile marine.

The British commercial tonnage on this basis, equals the combined fleets of her closest rivals—those of the United States, Japan and Germany, in the order of their ranking. Glance at Britain's use of the oceanic highways of world life. The "food routes" from Canada across the North Atlantic shortcut; up from South America and the Antipodes the lines of raw material movement from the Indian ocean and more eastern seas; the market lanes along which flow out Britain's manufactures—these lines of communication occupy 2,000,000 tons of British ships on any typical day the length and breadth of the globe. Two-thirds of the tonnage on which British economic life depends, entered and cleared at English ports, is under her own flag. It keeps freight money and other profits at home, lending decidedly to balance the national accounts.

SEAS HOLD KEY

Here we come to the chalkboard realities which lie in the background of this phase of the struggle for world power. Greater Britain, dependent on ships, demands national security. This was defined in categorical terms at the ill-fated Geneva naval parity of 1927.

"We have stated before and we state again, that as we have only a few weeks' food supply in Britain at any given moment, we depend for our very existence on free passage on the seas," declared Britain's spokesman, the Right Honorable W. O. Bridgeman, as first lord of the admiralty. "We said before and we repeat it that as the transport of our food and raw materials and of our inter-imperial trade also depends on safe passage over the oceans which separate the different parts of the empire, we are, owing to the distance apart, more dependent than any other nation on freedom of communication by sea."

LAW SAYS AUTOMOBILE LIGHTS MUST BE TESTED

One of the new statutes enacted by the legislature during 1935 requires that all applicants for licenses for automobiles must submit with their application a certified receipt showing their headlights have been tested by an official testing station and found to comply with the law. No licenses are to be issued unless the applications carries such a receipt.

This new statute also provides that dealers in automobiles must not deliver a new car unless there is a sticker in the windshield showing that the headlights have been tested and found to meet the requirements of the statute.

UTILITY ADVERTISING
Appearing before the Federal Trade commission Bernard F. Wedcock, special counsel for the joint committee of National Utility associations, asserted that the public utilities have never attempted to influence the attitude of newspapers by means of advertising. It may be that here and there misguided executives of public utilities have thought they might shape or control in some degree the policies of a newspaper by using substantial advertising space. There are men of poor judgment in the utility business the same as in every other. On the whole, however, the utilities have handled newspaper advertising as a strictly business proposition, and they have been entirely justified in conducting an extensive campaign of education by this means.

For a number of years the utilities were misjudged and misunderstood, from what causes it is not necessary here to inquire. But they were on the defensive just as were the railroads and just as were great private corporations which had come to be prejudiced in the public mind as "trusts," "monopolies," etc. If they had adjusted themselves to new conditions and had adopted better policies and methods, it was right that they should acquaint the public with the fact. Believing themselves entitled to public confidence and goodwill because of the services they were performing and their general attitude toward their consumers and the public at large, it was their privilege to explain themselves to the public. And this explanation had to be based on facts, good faith and the integrity of their business, or it was doomed not only to failure but to the most damaging reactions.

We believe this advertising has been of incredible value to the public utilities and others which have engaged in it. The money spent in conducting it has not influenced the policies of any reputable newspaper in the country. Some of the facts they have presented doubtless have had their effect upon publishers as well as the public, but not the money. The presentation of their case in this manner has been wisely and soundly conceived, has helped to improve corporate relations with the people and has made for a better understanding of important economic and industrial problems.

THE LA FOLLETTE APPOINTMENT
We think the administration forces acted sensibly in giving a place on the senate finance committee to Robert M. La Follette. While from a strictly partisan standpoint they might have been justified in excluding him on the ground that he is a schismatic, it may be even better politics to do as they have done and it certainly is fair to the West.

Very important matters come before the finance committee, including the tariff, and on this latter subject Mr. La Follette represents generally. We think, the views of the Mid-west. He had the indorsement of the independent Republicans, which constitute most of the representation in that section. Mr. La Follette has made a consistent fight against surrender to the Eastern viewpoint in revision of the tariff. He has insisted upon confining the schedules more nearly to agricultural products, and has demanded an accounting from great industrial interests to show the merits of their claims for additional protection in the light of their profits and existing prosperity.

Furthermore, the Wisconsin senator has not let himself be carried away by extremists in the Progressive group, but has kept a pretty level head. He will be a good antidote to the reaction and bourbonism with which the finance committee has long been packed. We are glad to see him receive this recognition, which comes not at all as a routine party elevation, but as representing a certain respect for the attempt of the west to gain a larger and more influential standing in the senate.

SEARCHING HOMES FOR LIQUOR
Rep. Schafer of Wisconsin has introduced in the house a bill which provides that federal agents engaged in enforcing the prohibition act or other federal laws who search any private dwelling without a search warrant, or who, without probable cause, procure such a warrant, would be guilty of a felony, and liable to imprisonment of not less than one and not more than 10 years.

While this is an extreme attempt to curb unlawful and unjust invasion of the private home, we would not say that it is any more severe in its penalties than the law which makes it a felony to sell liquor or the attempt to do so interpret the Jones act as to make it a felony to purchase liquor. In our opinion, inviolability of the home is more sacred than the whole cause of prohibition. If it is not respected and upheld the primary obligation of the constitution and the government to afford security to the individual is nullified.

We can conceive of no case where the search of the private home for liquor would be justified in the absence of the most positive evidence that it was being used as a resort for the sale of liquor in flagrant violation of the federal law. The fact is, however, that frequent invasions of private dwellings have been made in disregard of fundamental rights of citizens. It is up to the government to put an end to this abuse and if it does not do so through executive and administrative orders, then it is the duty of congress to act in some such manner as Rep. Schafer has proposed, in order that citizens may have adequate protection against zealotry and brutality in their homes.

THE ESSENCE OF SUCCESS
The success story continues to be our most popular American institution. Magazines, books and newspapers are full of stories telling how this and that errand boy rose to be president of such and such a corporation; and the implied corollary, of course, is always, "Go thou and do likewise." So we have a cult of success. To fit one's life to a planned campaign, and—above all—to follow this campaign through to victory; this seems, to all of us, the greatest good possible.

This makes us all ambitious, and probably has a very good effect. But it tends to make us forget that it is perfectly possible for a man to fail, utterly, in the task he sets himself and still win a great victory. There are failures, in other words, that are not failures at all. A good example of this is being provided now in the nation-wide campaign to raise funds to buy the Virginia birthplace of Robert E. Lee and turn it into a national shrine, similar to Mount Vernon. This man Lee, judged by all our ordinary standards, was a failure. He dedicated himself to a definite plan—establishing the independence of the Southern Confederacy. He failed. For four dreadful years he did everything that a man could do to gain his end, and did it superlatively well. But it was no use. Success simply wasn't in the cards. At the end the Confederacy had become only a bright dream, and Lee—on the surface of things—was a beaten man, with everything that he had fought for battered down in the dust.

Yet today, more than half a century later, we are buying Lee's very birthplace for a national shrine; indicating, thereby, that by common consent we have enrolled him among our immortals. How does this happen? We do not ordinarily, erect memorials to failures. What was there about Lee that makes an exception of him? Simply this: his failure was more magnificent than most successes. Losing everything that he fought for, he proved once more that what a man is is more important than what he accomplishes.

For it is not merely because Lee was one of the great strategists of all history that we are honoring his memory. He was a great man as well; and if you will study his life you will find yourself, in the end, admiring the man more than the soldier. Success, in other words, is not as important as we imagine. There is a way of life, a system of living, that outshines it. If a man shapes his life to the right pattern, it does not make much difference whether he wins success or failure in the common sense of those words. He can be defeated a thousand times over and still rise above most victors.

Today's Anniversary
STAMP ACT PASSED
On Jan. 10, 1765, the British Parliament passed the much-hated Stamp Act.
The act, signed by George III, provided "for granting and supplying certain stamp duties, and other duties, in the British colonies and plantations in America, toward further defraying the expense of defending, protecting and securing the same."
The Stamp Act prescribed (1) that stamp paper be used for legal and official documents, diplomas and certificates; (2) that stamps be placed on playing cards, dice, pamphlets, calendars, almanacs and other articles; and (3) that jury trial be denied offenders at the discretion of authorized prosecuting officers.
When news of its passage reached America, there arose an immediate cry against "taxation without representation." Many stamp agents were mobbed and the stamps destroyed so that the act had been virtually nullified before it was put into effect.

Personal Health Talks

Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

NOT SO PRETTY BUT VERY EFFICIENT
Since our last talk about proper and improper methods of resuscitation in drowning cases, half a dozen "directors of safety education," "safety engineers" and such have caused their secretaries to write me that my interesting theory has been brought to their attention and they would be pleased to examine my argument or learn what my authority for it may be. These ponderous executives remind me of a young whippersnapper who placed by his indolent father in an office position, sent me a letter in which he repeatedly referred to the Dictator. The Dictator thinks this, and the Dictator trusts that, and I thought he meant the old man, but I learned to my dismay that he was merely striving to let me know he had a stenographer.

The American Red Cross, very quickly and without any apology or explanation to the public, ceased teaching the deadly jack-knife maneuver in resuscitation from drowning, some time in the past year. For two or three years I have been warning the public against this dangerous stunt that the American Red Cross first aid or life saving instructors taught. In that time I have collected an amusing bundle of naive letters from divers underlings and a few from big noises of that august organization, and they're all of one tenor, rather like the comical note from the "Dictator."

It seems to me that when such an organization as the American Red Cross assumes the authority to teach life saving or resuscitation and makes such a grievous mistake as it made in this jack-knife maneuver—an utterly useless sacrifice of a few precious moments of time, which may literally rob the victim of the faint spark of life, if there is any chance of restoration—the saving authorities owe something more to the public than a speaking, quiet, gumshoe withdrawal of the crutchie, tumbler from its published instructions. That the Red Cross at last gives up this deadly monkey-shine in resuscitation and does it as quietly as possible, is hardly a fair amendment. There are probably several hundred "directors of safety education," "safety engineers," "life guards," swimming teachers, demon firemen and second deputy assistant Red Cross life saving experts who have received the wrong instruction, including the jack-knife maneuver. How are all these improperly trained instructors to be set right if the Red Cross fails to give the matter the publicity it deserves?

It is surely time to call a halt on the ambitions of this organization to monopolize all health, life and general welfare activities of the country. But that is a question for our statesmen and economists. I confine my protest to the crime I point out. I accept the American Red Cross of unfaithfulness in the administration of this vital matter of life saving instruction, and I challenge the officers or representatives or spokesmen or medical authorities, if any, who are connected with the American Red Cross to plead the case or to offer extenuation if there is any.

Any one who wishes may consult the manual "First Aid and Resuscitation" approved by American Red Cross. The 1923 edition contains description and picture of the fatal jack-knife maneuver. The 1929 edition omits it. Now let some Red Cross representative explain why it is omitted if it is omitted if it was right in 1923.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Sammon a Policeman
As the mother of two children who have to go to the movies, I appeal to you to start some agitation to put a ban on the attendance of children who have whooping cough. What is the matter with the health department? Why not a sign at the entrance to the theater: "CHILDREN WITH WHOOPING COUGH NOT ADMITTED." (L. A.)

Answer—While the youngsters with whooping cough are distributing samples among the other children in the audience, probably the health department people are running a clinic somewhere or composing pieces to print in the paper advising the public to be careful. If public health administration were a fact instead of an ideal, a policeman or other inspector would be present to exclude such obviously ailing children and to see that their parents are punished for the misdemeanor. Nowadays it seems our putative public health guardians are so busy ordering tonsils removed and distributing spectacles, toothbrushes and nourishing school lunches, that they can't bother with these police matters.

Alkaline Antiseptic Solution
I have found the use of the alkaline antiseptic solution you suggested for chronic rhinitis very beneficial. I am improving a lot, and I thank you for it. (G. A. T.)

Answer—Alkaline antiseptic solution is prepared by any druggist from the national formula. It is to be diluted with three or four parts of water for use, in a straight atomizer, always agreeably warm, and three or four times a day over a prolonged period.

Baby Keeps Only What He Wants
Should a baby three or four months old vomit part of its food? (B. G. W.)

Answer—Normally a young baby will return any excess of food inadvertently consumed, and think no more about it. In the case of milk it is usually more or less curdled.

Why Quacks Demand Pay in Advance
Being ruptured, I saw where a man claimed he could cure any case. I wrote him and told him to go ahead and cure me, but he demands pay in advance. His name is..... and I want to know if you would pay him $$$$ down and $$$$ per month for his treatment.... (M. H. H.)

Answer—If he were honest and really could cure anything, he could make millions in a year or two by effecting the cures. But of course the fellow is a humbug and that's why he has to have your $$$$ first. (Copyright John F. Dille Co.)

FLASHES FROM HOLLYWOOD
BY ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood—Strange, sometimes, is the evolution of a song. For years Harry Tierney, one of the more notable musical importations here from Broadway, has been charmed by the south. For years he has been intrigued by the Southern song of "Dixie."

"Everywhere, north, south, east and west, I have seen audiences gripped by that song's appeal," he says. "It is irresistible. And for long I have been trying to get something of the spirit that song into an original composition of my own."

About a year ago, at a dinner given by John J. Raskob in New York, Tierney relates, a certain phrase occurred to him. He suddenly lapsed into silence, began tapping his feet absently under the table. Solicitous, Mrs. Tierney inquired if he were ill, or nervous, or wanted to leave. He assured her all was well—and kept on tapping.

CONSIDER AFTER PARTY
The party was prolonged, and instead of going home to Polheim the Tierneys remained at a hotel. Tierney ordered a piano for his room by 10 o'clock that morning. Before 9 he was up and waiting. Before 10, he had composed in his mind the verse for the chorus composed at dinner the night before.

When the piano came he played the whole piece and transcribed the notes. The result was "Dixiana." Tierney will write.

Most popular music composers are eternally seeking a "hit" number. Tierney is different. He was a student of music, and a real musician, before he became a composer. He does not write with dance orchestras in mind.

He prefers the hittingly sweet melodies of the Viennese type. Some of his songs, such as "Alice Blue Gown" and "Rio Rita," have been jazzed mercilessly. Tierney smiles

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON
BY HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington — A newspaperman and his wife, who had moved to Washington less than a year before from a city in the midwest, were almost swept off their feet last Christmas when they received a card of greetings from the Nicholas Longworths.

The wife was confident that some friend was playing a joke. She couldn't bring herself to believe that the speaker of the house of representatives and Princess Alice knew they existed.

Nor did they until the Longworths' social secretary had taken a look at the Congressional Directory. The newcomers, along with hundreds of others whose names are listed there, owed their Longworth card to this fact.

It's a common practice in Washington for high officials to send Christmas and New Years greetings in discriminate fashion.

FORMAL
As a general rule, however, like other amenities of the capital, this annual exchange of greetings is more or less formally regulated.

The cards of senators and representatives, for example, followed much the same design. On the card one sees the dome of the capitol, the Lincoln memorial and the Washington monument. Some cards have only one of these three, but the majority have them all.

The number and methods employed for distribution of cards varies. One representative has had several young women busy for days addressing cards. He expects to send 10,000 to close personal and political associates in his district.

THE HOMETOWN RULES
But it is among the embassies and legations where individual preference in designs and methods of distribution carry special interest. Some in the diplomatic set chose made-in-America cards, but general they adhere to the principle that the embassy is a transplanted bit of the homeland and select their cards accordingly.

British cards, following the royal custom, are conservatively dignified. The prince of Wales sends numerous cards to friends in Washington. The German and French embassies sponsor warmly the Christmas card custom. So do the Scandinavians.

"One bar soap—$1.75." Just one entry on the expense account of the vice president of the United States, Charles Curtis. And it was for his automobile. The "soap" is a special cleaner used by mechanics to keep the car gleaming.

The vice president has one car to the President's dozen or more, but it is an expensive proposition just the same.

Curtis' limousine is a swanky, all-black one. The United States shield is emblazoned on the doors, but it is distinguished from the President's cars by "V. P." in tiny letters beneath the seal.

PRIVATE SLEUTHS WHO FOSTER STRIFE RAPPED BY WHEELER

Montanan Wants Inquiry to Show What Can Be Done to Halt Practice

Washington—(AP)—An investigation of the activities of charlatan private detectives who secretly enter the ranks of organized labor, foment industrial disputes and mislead both worker and employer, to their own financial benefit, is proposed by Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana.

The purpose of the inquiry, under a resolution of which he is the author, would be to ferret out practices of this nature and formulate preventive legislation. The investigation would be conducted by the senate labor committee.

Meanwhile, another member of the senate, Wagner of New York, who, like Wheeler, has been interested in labor legislation, is drafting a series of bills intended to meet the problem of unemployment through action by the federal government.

He has prepared three measures, providing long range planning of public works under the direction of a board of cabinet members, with an annual authorization of $100,000,000 to facilitate public construction in times of depression; federal cooperation with states and municipalities in the maintenance of employment bureaus, with an annual authorization of $1,000,000; and an expansion of the activities of the bureau of labor statistics in the labor department.

SENATE PROMPT ACTION

Wheeler intends to ask the senate for prompt approval of his resolution, to the end that the investigation may be begun at the earliest possible time. It was preferred to the labor committee.

The measure contains a series of charges which it says have been borne out by "various court proceedings and published investigations."

These allegations are that "a large number of private detective agencies are obtaining large sums of money from business concerns and organizations by falsely representing movements among their employees, by joining labor organizations and advocating revolutionary methods for the purpose of discrediting said labor organizations and by manufacturing scares concerning radical propaganda and alleged plans

Broiled Veal, Venetian, Something Different For Next Sunday Dinner

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the menu which Oscar of the Waldorf, writing for Post-Crescent and NEA Service, suggests for your next Sunday dinner.

Anchovy Canape
Tomato Bouillon
Broiled Veal, Venetian
Baked Potatoes Carrots in Cream
Waldorf Salad
Chocolate Charlotte Russe
Coffee

Broiled Veal, Venetian
Procure some rather thick and large slices of veal and lay them on a dish with some chopped mushrooms and scallions, some thyme, bayleaf and chopped parsley. Dredge them over with salt and pepper and taste them with a few tablespoons of olive oil. Allow the slices to steep in this marinade for an hour or so, turning them now and then so that they will be equally flavored.

Strew them with finely ground breadcrumbs, place them side by side on a gridiron and broil over a clear fire. When done on one side, turn and broil on the remainder of the marinade.

When cooked, arrange the slices of veal on a hot dish, squeeze the juice of an orange over, and serve.

Interesting Menus

By Sister Mary NEA Service Writer

Spice Cakes have a strong appeal in cold weather. Just the smell of a house that has had a spice cake baked in it is enough to "make one's mouth water."

Freshly ground spice has the best and strongest flavor, but few housekeepers attempt to grind or crush their own spices these days. Pepper and nutmeg are the only exceptions. The small pepper grinders for use in the kitchen or on the table are popular in many homes, and of course the proverbial nutmeg grater is included in nearly every kitchen equipment.

Spice always must be kept in closely covered containers. Either buy small quantities at a time or put into the regular container only as much as will be used in a few weeks, storing the rest in an air-tight container and removing the supply as needed.

SPICE CAKE

Four eggs, 1-1/2 cups brown sugar, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 2-1/2 cups flour, 1-2 cup butter, 1 cup sweet milk, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-1/4 teaspoon salt.

Cream butter and beat in sugar. Saves whites of three eggs for frosting. Beat one whole egg and yolks of the eggs until very light and beat into first mixture. Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder and add alternately with milk to first mixture. Turn into a buttered and floured dripping pan and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Let cool slightly and cover with the following frosting.

FROSTING

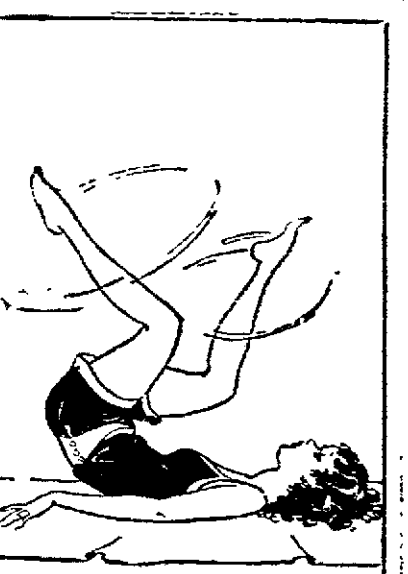

Whites 3 eggs, 1-1/2 cups brown sugar.
Roll brown sugar on a molding until free from lumps. Beat whites of eggs on a big platter with a wire whisk until stiff and dry. Beat sugar into eggs and spread on cake. Put into a hot oven to brown the frosting.

Feather-Weight Woolen Frock

A feather-weight woolen, a one-piece affair so appropriate for general utility wear, chooses the favorite yellow-beige and brown tones, and flaunts a gay scarf accented by plain brown and yellow trim.

The plain brown woolen is repeated in turn-back flared cuffs banded in the yellow woolen, with the plain yellow-beige appearing again in the vestee.

The designer has carried out every detail to add to the effect of slenderness. The surplus bodice is plated and caught with buckle at left hip, creating a swathed movement to soften its line. Grouped skirted plaits in skirt assume diagonal course to contribute further length to silhouette.

It is the most simple dress imaginable to make, and the saving is well worth the effort.

The Story of Sue
by MARGERY HALE
© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

O If you're the wonderfully efficient secretary that Jack's been telling me about, aren't you?" Barbara asked sweetly, and Sue reflected that her smile might have been rolled in powdered sugar. "You never, never put this before the 'I' in believe, or is it the other way? I never do know."

She made an appealing gesture of feminine helplessness and glanced imploringly at Jack, who laughed delightedly.

"Who cares about where 'e's and 'i's are, anyway?" he asked.

"You're such a darling, Jack," she rewarded him. "But you just ought to hear him sing your praises, Miss Merryman. He says you can locate Timbuctu and know how many miles it is to Tokio, and everything." She clapped her hands softly and just adore being efficient.

"I'd give Sue an appealing smile. 'I'd warn her."

"I couldn't. It wouldn't be-me," she finished sadly, shaking the golden head and getting a faraway look in her purple eyes. "I'll just go on not being of any use to anyone, ever, I guess."

"You could do everything Sue does if you just tried," Jack defended her loyally. "Couldn't she, Sue? I know: You come down to the office some day, Barbara, and I'll dictate to you."

"Oh, honestly, may I?" she asked with the breathlessness of a child asking for another piece of the birthday cake. "That would be wonderful." It took her a very long time to say the last word.

"I'll say it will," Harry interrupted. "When he talks so fast you don't know what he's saying and numbers through his teeth."

"No, he doesn't mumble through his teeth, does he, Miss Merryman?" Barbara appealed to Sue. Then, still laughing softly, she glided away with Jack as the music started again.

Sue excused herself and ran up to the dressing room. She had to be alone to collect her poise. She was angry and disgusted and disappointed. She was framing her already red lips in a deeper cherry when Sarah, who had been invited after all, came in.

"More war paint," she said understandingly. "The fight is on. Where in the world did he get the powder puff affair? Aren't men ridiculous? Girls play with dolls when they are seven and eight and nine, but men wait until they're three and four times that age."

"They do make a stunning looking couple," Sue answered casually, trying to appear disinterested. "You're lovely in yellow taffeta, Sarah."

"You'll be most mighty kind to her when she comes down to help, won't you, Sue?" Jack appealed later in the evening. "She has all sorts of ability if she just had a chance. She really thinks she can type pretty well now, but she's too modest to say so. You're such a good sport I know you'll like having her around sometimes."

Sue laughed and there was a metallic sound to the laughter. "There's nothing that could be nicer than having her there, is there?" she asked lightly. Jack had not mentioned the new blue dress; had not talked of anyone or anything but Barbara. She would show him that she did not care. And surely, surely some day the little dancing doll would pack up her tea set and go home. She must.

"Of course I'll like having her," she said in a quieter tone.

But five minutes later, in a corner of the veranda where she had gone with Harry, she overheard the fluted voice.

"Jack honey, isn't it silly, but I had almost imagined you were in love with your stenographer—really I had—and I do think she likes you, well, well, more than she should."

The Tinymites
By Hal Cochran

"WELL, this is great," wee Clowdy cried. "I love to watch those monkeys ride. Just watch them hanging by their tails. They're clever as can be. But even so, I must confess, I'd do as well as them, I guess. I will not do it, though, because you'd all just laugh at me."

"Don't brag," snapped Scouty. "That sounds cheap. The best thing you can do is keep real still about what you can do till you can prove your worth. The people I dislike the most are those who always stand and boast. We all would be much better off if there were none on earth."

This held poor Clowdy for a while. And then his face spread in a smile. "Oh, look," said he, "that monkey's standing on the handle-bars. The rest are chattering out loud. Of him they all seem rather proud. I hope they do not scratch our bike or fill it up of mars."

And then the monkey man cried, "Hey! You monkeys have had enough of play. Stop riding now and bring that bike back here by my side. I want you all to rest a bit until you're feeling fit. Then, for the Times' benefit you'll have another ride."

The monkeys jumped off, to the ground and chattered. "You can around," "Sit down," exclaimed their owner. "I have told you all to rest." One monkey had disappeared from sight. The owner said, "Things are not right. The monkey that's gone is up to tricks. He is a little pest."

Then Scouty cried, "He's having fun. Just look at him, and what he's done. He's taken our nice bike apart."

when she comes down to help, won't you, Sue?" Jack appealed later in the evening. "She has all sorts of ability if she just had a chance. She really thinks she can type pretty well now, but she's too modest to say so. You're such a good sport I know you'll like having her around sometimes."

L'FOLLETTE LEAST WORRIED OF ALL IN BATTLE OVER POST

Bob Had No Cause to Worry, as He Had Nothing to Lose

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Wash. Corra.
Washington — The question of whether or not Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr., of Madison, Wis., was to be given the coveted seat on the Senate Finance committee has been a terrible strain on everybody concerned. Apparently the young senator from Wisconsin has been the least affected by the ruckus.

Since he had nothing to lose and everything to gain, there has been no reason for him to worry. If he did not get the Finance committee appointment, he would get the Interstate Commerce committee job and that would please him personally just as well. The western insurgents in the Senate, however, determined that now was the time to make the fight for representation on the committee which makes the tariff and the taxes and so he stood by his request for appointment to the Finance committee.

Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, chairman of the committee on committees and Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, chairman of the Finance committee, suffered most during the battle. Senator McNary, slim, dapper, more youthful in appearance than even his more 35 years would justify, looked about ten years older by the second day of the sessions of his committee. Senator Smoot, always looking harassed anyway, was threatening to resign from the chairmanship of the Finance committee if Senator La Follette becomes put on it.

SMOOT BECOMES EXCITED
Nobody took that seriously, however. Senator Smoot is very temperamental that way, if one can judge of reports of his troubles in closed sessions of his committee. He wrote out his resignation once when the committee voted him down on a sugar duty, it is said, but when his fellow members are up the scarp of paper, he did not write another.

Senator Guy D. Goff of West Virginia has really sacrificed more than any other in this battle and now it appears that his vicarious sacrifices has all been in vain. The White House, it is said, convinced him that it was his duty to his party to resign from the Interstate Commerce committee to block the appointment of La Follette to the Finance committee.

Since that time, he has heard from his constituents, who are not reconciled to the idea of his leaving the Interstate Commerce committee with railroad consolidation, power legislation and possibly coal legislation coming up. He does not want to all to go on the Finance committee.

Then President Hoover appointed Senator Frederic M. Sackett of Kentucky to be ambassador to Germany. That left another vacancy on the Finance committee and apparently made it inevitable for La Follette to be appointed anyhow, despite all the hullabaloo and the sacrifice of Senator Goff.

The next development to embarrass the committee on committees was the belated application of Senator Jesse H. Metcalf of Rhode Island for appointment to the Finance committee. If the committee was to stick to its principle of following seniority, that would give one place to Senator Metcalf and one to Senator Goff.

METCALF IS OUT
They knew from the very beginning that it would not do to put Senator Metcalf on the committee. After all, there were already four New England Senators on the Finance committee—Frank L. Greene of Vermont, Henry W. Keyes of New Hampshire, Hiram Bingham of Connecticut and David I. Walsh, Democrat from Massachusetts. To put another on when 14 large western states have no representation would be too bold. It would leave only

Doll Hospital In First Ward School Always Full

They vaccinate their victims with nails and wheel them around in an ambulance that in its better days was a baker's cart, but nevertheless there is always a full house at the hospital recently constructed in the kindergarten at First Ward school. Dolls with fractured skulls, broken limbs, lacerated faces, and even those with nothing but a plain toothache receive expert medical attention while interned in the newly built hospital.

Confronted with the problems of finding a use for the dozens of little beds made from cigar boxes the First Ward kiddies chose between turning their playroom into a hotel or a hospital. The latter won, and since then the place has been agog with medical queries, construction and furnishing problems, and doll ailments that would make a medical dictionary look simple. Several private rooms have been furnished and a children's ward is now under way. The old baker cart was turned into an ambulance a wheeled stretcher was built. Mattresses and bedding were made for the beds, sleeping garments for the doll patients, and appliances.

Maine of this small group of states unrepresented.

Meanwhile, there was Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, a native of Wisconsin, always threatening a battle if La Follette's seniority right to the place on the committee should be denied or if an easterner should be drawn into the place where so many easterners already foregather.

The committee on committees consists of Senator McNary, the chairman; Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, who says the insurgents are worse than communists; Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire whose merely superficial knowledge of biblical references caused him to throw himself into the hands of the westerners by calling them "sons of the wild jackass"; Senator Smoot, Senator Tasker L. Oddie of Nevada; Senator Nye; Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas; Senator Charles S. Deneen of Illinois; and Senator Bingham.

The opposition to La Follette consisted of Bingham, Reed, Smoot, Deneen and Moses.

While they are working on the project the youngsters relate their experiences in hospitals—tonsilectomies, vaccinations and broken limbs. The two kinds of patients, accident and disease victims, are discussed, and the children are taught how to avoid accidents and how to build their bodies against disease. Rules of health and safety precautions are taught the children through the medium of their play hospital.

ACTIVITIES FUND IS ESTABLISHED AT HIGH SCHOOL

New System Will Handle Money of All Student Organizations

Neenah—A new system for handling the funds of high school organizations, to be known as the Neenah High School Activities Fund, has been adopted. It is a central fund system through which each organization in the high school will operate on a more businesslike basis.

There are more than 25 different accounts handled by the new plan. Each organization and activity must of necessity be a part of the central fund. Heretofore the practice was to have the student treasurer collect and handle the funds of each organization, subject to the approval of the faculty advisor. Few, if any, records were maintained, and determining the financial standing of each organization was not a easy task.

The Neenah high school has no full-fledged banking system, the administration of the central fund plan is a phase of school banking and is handled in the commercial department. The new plan is sufficiently extensive to meet the needs of high school finances and at the same time give an accountable record of all funds received and all payments made, it is reported.

After all student treasurers have been elected and all faculty advisors selected, a meeting of these persons will be called and the system explained. H. L. Pautz, head of the commercial department and secretary-treasurer of the high school athletic association, has active supervisions and control over the school bank.

The plan is brief. Before any student is authorized to make a purchase for his organization, he fills out in detail a purchase order form in triplicate and has it signed by the faculty advisor and principal. The original is presented to the merchant, one duplicate is placed on file in the banking department, and the other is retained by the student as a record of all unpaid bills, marked paid when remittance is made.

EACH HANDLES FUND

Each organization handles a fund of its own, a record of which is maintained in the activity fund loose-leaf ledger. When an obligation is to be met, the student fills out a check, a regulation voucher giving the date and amount to whom the check is to be issued, out of what fund, and purpose of payment. The voucher is signed by the adviser. Upon presentation, together with bill or invoice which is attached to the voucher for payment filing, the bookkeeper writes the check and records the number of it on the voucher. Checks are drawn in payment of bills only when the purchase order filled out in detail is attached. All funds deposited in the school bank are deposited at one of the local banks, a larger portion in a savings account and the remainder in a checking account. The interest the savings account earns is used to pay for equipment and supplies necessary to operate the school bank. The records are verified each month, giving the standing of each organization's account.

The new system is working out nicely in keeping the organization's self supporting and to provide excellent training for students in charge of school finances, teachers report.

CHURCH BUILDING IS ALL PAID FOR, OFFICERS REPORT

Officers Are Elected at Annual Meeting of Congregational Church

Menasha—H. M. Northrup, treasurer, announced at the annual meeting of the Congregational church society Thursday evening that the final payment on the church building had been made and that all bills for current expenses had been paid. W. H. Miner presided at the meeting. New officers elected were: Trustees, E. H. Schultz, Hugh Gear, Edward Fox, Charles Friedland, clerk, Gary E. Floyd; treasurer, H. M. Northrup, reelected.

The meeting was preceded by a supper served by the ladies of the church. There was a large attendance. Each organization reported a good year with a balance in the treasury.

The annual meeting of the church was held at the close of the society meeting with the pastor, the Rev. John Best, presiding. Officers selected were: Deacons, Ralph Longworth, David Prosser, I. A. Berglund; Sunday school superintendent, H. M. Northrup; church clerk, Miss Elanthe Calder; church treasurer, Miss Ina Inghram; business committee, Mrs. E. Duvall, Mrs. Henry Wendt, Mrs. William Gear. The officers with committees to be appointed will be installed at a dedicatory service next Sunday morning.

Six members of the church and Sunday school died during the year, but the pastor officiated at 16 funerals, showing the community character of the ministry of the Congregational church.

A balance in the church treasury was voted to be sent to the new universal Congregational church at Madison for its work among Congregational students of the state.

SMOKE RINGS ARE QUITE THE THING

Manipulation of Spring Turns Device in Cigaret Holder

BY AILEEN LAMONT
Copyright, 1930 by Cons. Press
New York—Smoke-rings are among the articles observed where really smart society dines or lunces. These are real rings, worn usually on the forefinger, and they are usually made of or made as precious metal as you please. Instead of a stone, the setting holds a clever device, which, by the manipulation of a tiny spring, turns out to be a cigarette holder. Co-quetting no end!

Not only are the newest nightgowns—yes, some women still dislike pajamas—lavishly trimmed with lace, but among the newest nightgowns is one made up of lace entirely. Duchesse lace, too. It is a beautiful affair. Its one ornament is a narrow sash of pale blue satin ribbon, and when laundried by hand it comes out as good as new; a distinct advantage, since it costs several hundred dollars. But, of course, duchesse isn't the only lace in the world.

One of the few styles too practical and pretty to be tossed into the discard is the cocktail jacket. As every woman knows, you must not have sleeves with a formal party dress; yet, on the other hand, many women haven't the arms for it. The cocktail jacket, of chiffon, lame, or georgette, adds charm to the arm which has it. Gives charm to that which has it. Cocktail jackets, which began as waist-length garments, often are longer and roomier today than the original models, reaching sometimes to the knees.

Gerlauf of Paris has thought up some new kinks in the location of jeweled ornaments on frocks. Instead of posing a sparkly buckle in the middle of the waistline or on the hip, Gerlauf has a knack of putting it on the left shoulder, rather low down toward the point of a V-neck, or of fastening three bright buckles to the streamers which hang from the cut-out back of the evening decollete.

KEEP COMPETITION IN RADIO - CABLE, IS PLEA OF STONE

Head of Kolster Radio Corporation Attacks Plan of R. C. A. to Sell

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press

Washington—(AP)—A plea to Congress to keep the radio-cable competitive situation status quo, and not be inveigled into a blunder like the British radio-cable merger, is made by Ellery W. Stone, president of the Kolster Radio Corporation and Federal Telegraph company.

Assailing the plan of the Radio Corporation of America to sell its transoceanic radio properties to the International Telephone and Telegraph company, the young radio executive said no good could come of such a fusion. Radio progress would be stifled and the steady downward trend in communications rates since radio competition with the cables began would be abruptly halted if the control of radio communications passed to the cable company. He told the senate interstate commerce committee.

Mr. Stone was as vehement in his denunciation of the plan as was Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union, who preceded him as a witness. Competition is necessary as between radio and cables, he declared. If the I. T. & T. gets the R. C. A. facilities, they will be used merely as a "stand-by" for interrupted or occasionally overloaded cable circuits. To subject radio to the passive role of standby use for breakdown cables, as against its past active competition with such cables, he asserted, "will result in the eventual decay of radio as against the rapid strides in its development which we have witnessed since 1911 under the driving force of competition."

PICTURES SITUATION

The witness gave a graphic picture of the whole communications situation. Although his company is not now engaged in radio communication of any kind, the Federal Telegraph company, a Kolster subsidiary, does manufacture such equipment, selling to the I. T. & T. all it now owns. Should the fusion get congressional approval, through the elimination of provisions of law which now prohibit them, I. T. & T. unquestionably would switch its apparatus purchasing to the R. C. A.

The proposed sale price of the R. C. A. facilities—in the neighborhood of $100,000,000—was declared unwarranted by the witness, who said the actual book value of the property is $15,000,000. This price, he declared, is based upon the tremendous profits from fields other than communications realized by the R. C. A. I. T. & T., therefore, he said, will have to raise its rates on such an expenditure, with the result that communications rates to the public would not be reduced as would logically be expected.

Like Mr. Carlton, the witness declared that the British radio-cable merger, which, it has been contended, imperils America's supremacy in communications unless met by a similar American merger, presents no hazard at all.

He said that before arrangements for the sale had been made R. C. A. strongly favored competition between radio and cables, while, on the other hand, the Master Radio Telegraph company, which later became a subsidiary of I. T. & T., had launched a campaign to break R. C. A.'s monopoly in radio communications.

"What—besides the prospects of enormous profits through the proposed sale—has happened to cause the R. C. A. officials to change their view?" he asked. "What—besides the obvious advantages of acquiring such a monopoly—has occurred to cause the MacKay system officials to abandon their laudable ambition to break the R. C. A. monopoly?"

Mr. Stone favored the immediate establishment of a communications commission as proposed under the Couzens bill, pending before the committee. He strongly opposed the repeal of section 17 of the radio act, which forbids wire and wireless mergers.

Bodenhamer Urges Need For Universal Military Duty

Washington—(AP)—Universal military service was cited today by O. I. Bodenhamer, national commander of the American legion, as the one essential element in which the national defense policy of the United States is lacking.

Characterizing the army and navy as "the cheapest and best insurance for our national wealth and income that can be devised," he said the veterans' organizations endorse and support the National Defense act of 1920.

"There is nothing inherently wrong with the national defense policy of the United States as it stands in the basic law of our land today," he told the Army war college, "except that it is not complete and will not be complete until the principle of universal service is written into it as one of its fundamentals. There is a question, however, as to its successful operation in view of the fact that the degree of its 'workability' is dependent upon the availability of funds."

"The American legion believes that our national defense program is being made subservient to a false economy which prevents a full and fair trial of the provisions as outlined in the act of 1920 and its subsequent amendments."

Bodenhamer said the nation had found itself in a state of unpreparedness in each war since colonial times and arrested that "we do not yet seem fully to realize the necessity of a citizen army trained in the duties and responsibilities of soldier life." Referring to the phrase "a million men will spring to arms over night" when the nation calls, he asked:

"Upon what ground can we justify putting such a million volunteer Americans up against a million well trained and well armed soldiers of another nation?"

"The American legion believes that it is a national crime to send men to war untrained and unprepared," he continued. "Keeping our nation properly prepared does not necessarily make up war-like in our ambitions, but it does guarantee that we shall be prepared against the confusion and extravagance and reckless expenditure of money and of life which accompanied our entry into the recent World war because of our unpreparedness."

Facts About City Manager Government

Labor Well Pleased With City Manager

Questionnaires returned from labor leaders in a number of United States cities operating under the manager plan of government indicate that union men and labor generally is well satisfied with the way the manager plan is working out in their communities.

The attitude of labor in Janesville is an illustration of the response to these questionnaires. Gust Utterberg, president of the Janesville Central Labor Union, a carpenter by trade, said in his questionnaire:

"The city manager plan is working out to our satisfaction, resulting in lower taxes and a better coordination in the different branches of the city's business."

"I am well pleased with its operation in our city. It might not work out so well in all cases. It all depends upon the kind of manager that is hired by the council."

Mr. Utterberg said so far as he is aware there is no serious opposition to city manager government in Janesville.

From Bakersville, Calif., came a letter signed by L. A. Banner, secretary of the Kern County Building Trades council in which he said the city manager plan has been "generally satisfactory" and that "it was the general opinion of labor that the city manager plan was an improvement over the previous system." He said that Bakersville people have been so well pleased with the plan that no attempt had been made to change it.

Labor in Dayton, Ohio, has had fifteen years to study the city manager plan and it is more enthusiastic about it now than ever before. C. L. Templeton, president of the Trades and Labor council at Dayton, declared that the city manager plan has worked out very satisfactorily. "We have a very efficient police and fire department, and the purchasing department is conducted on business principles," he said.

The same kind of an enthusiastic response was received from Dubuque, Iowa, where John P. Quinn, business agent for the Carpenters union, declares that "We think the plan has worked out well. Union labor and business men get together before every election to pick men to go on our own ticket known as the Good Government league and so far we have won. The only opposition is from 'old line' politicians."

H. D. Apple, Sr., secretary of the Central Labor union at Greensboro, N. C., said the largest percentage of the population of his city, "likes the city manager plan."

The recording secretary of the Central Trades and Labor assembly of Watertown, N. Y., George W. Gibbs, a barber, said the plan is working out "very satisfactorily" in his city and that there is no opposition or dissatisfaction with the plan anywhere in the community.

These reports were taken at random to give a cross section of the entire country. Labor leaders quoted here live in the north, south, east and west and the universal verdict was "it is a satisfactory government."

WHO'S OLE JOHNSON

OF APPLETON, WIS.?

POSTOFFICE KNOWS

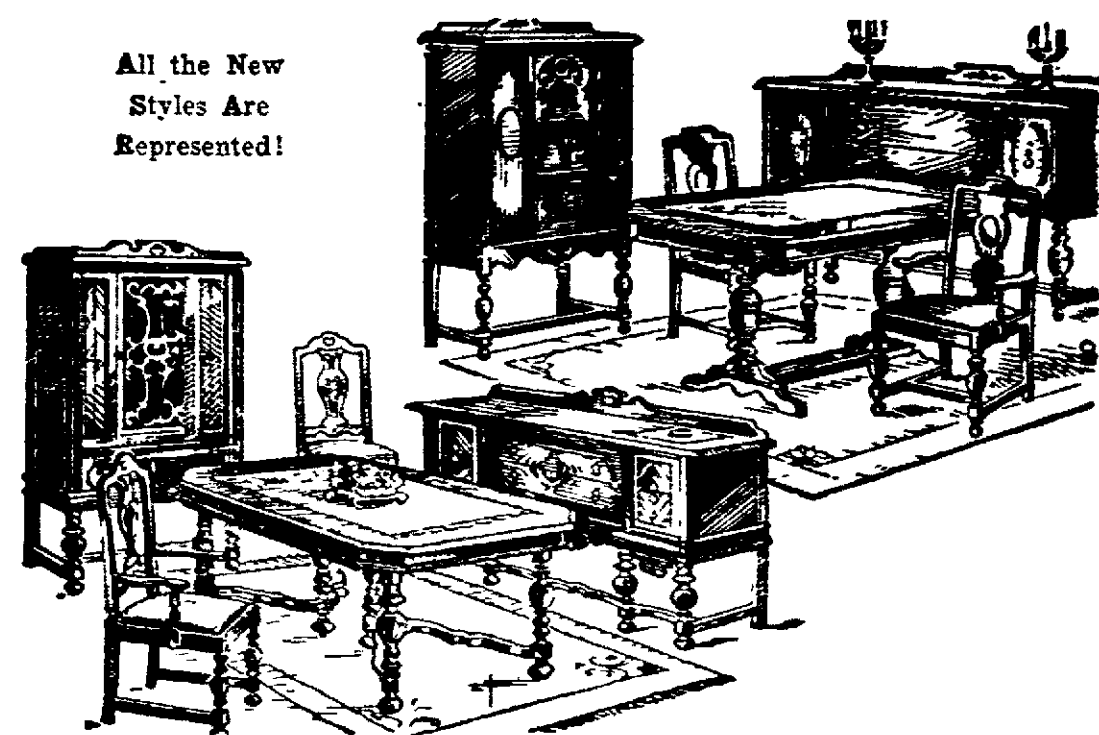

Here's one for Mr. Ripley. And you can believe it or not.

A few days ago Leslie C. Smith, commander of Oney Johnston post of the American Legion, received a letter from a former world war veteran who was filing his application for a bonus, taking advantage of the last few days before the period for application expired.

Now that isn't at all unusual, but the fact that the letter was addressed to "Ole Johnson, Appleton, Wis.," and was delivered to the commander of the post is a bit of a feature and incidentally a credit to the postoffice for finding the correct addressee.

The sender of the letter further informed "Mr. Ole Johnson" he was "applying for his bonus and wanted it sent to him immediately." The sender of the letter resides in Neenah.

Seven Grid Games Carded For Orange This Fall

WILL OPEN SEASON WITH MARINETTE AT APPLETON, SEPT. 27

Valley Conference Votes to Award Gold Footballs, Basketballs

SEVEN football games for the 1936 Appleton high school eleven have been scheduled by Coach Joseph Shields and probably will complete the entire season's card. The schedule was arranged Wednesday at a meeting of valley coaches at Fond du Lac.

Four games will be played in Appleton, according to the schedule, and three will be played on the road. The schedule has Appleton playing every team in the valley conference with no non-conference battles on the cards.

The Orange season will open on Sept. 27 with Marinette at Appleton. The previous Saturday, Sept. 25, a possible date for a game but no team yet has been secured for it.

West Green Bay will come to Appleton Oct. 4, and the week following the Orange will journey down to Fond du Lac. The following Saturday, Oct. 18 is an open date.

Sheboygan will entertain the Orange at Sheboygan on Oct. 25, the last game of the month and the team will be back on Whiting field on Nov. 1, with Manitowish furnishing the opposition. Oshkosh invades Appleton for the Nov. 8 date and the last game, Nov. 15, will find the team trying to get revenge on East Green Bay at the Bay.

The entire athletic situation in the Fox river valley was discussed at the Fond du Lac conference and plans made for an ice carnival, for the track schedule and for hockey.

From the viewpoint of the players the conference took a pleasing step by deciding to give gold footballs and basketballs to winners of the respective championships. Fifteen gold footballs will go to the winning grid team and eight gold basketballs to the basketball team.

HOLD ICE CARNIVAL
Marinette invited high school teams to enter the ice carnival to be held in that city Feb. 1, the entry lists for various events closing on Jan. 27. Races will be run in the 100, 220, 440, 880 yard dashes and in the 880 yard relay. Medals will be awarded winners of first, second and third places and the team winning the relay will receive a cup.

Appleton high school again put in a bid for hockey games and secured several dates. On Jan. 18 the Orange will meet Oshkosh at Oshkosh, and the week following the Sawdust city team will come to Appleton. Feb. 1 the two teams again will play as one of the feature events on the Marinette ice carnival program. Games also may be arranged with East Green Bay, and Neenah. Manitowish will not have a team this year because of the unsettled condition in minor sports caused by the change in athletic directors.

Twenty-five boys have been out for the high school hockey team, and have been practicing for several weeks. John Babino is captain of the team.

Dates for the spring track meets also were set at Wednesday's conference. The season will open May 3 with the Manitowish relays and on May 10, the Orange will hold a triangular meet with East and West. While May 17 will be held open. The following week, May 24, the Orange again will engage in a triangular meet this time at East Oshkosh. The conference track and field meet at Marinette on May 31 will close the season.

The date for the annual conference cross country meet in the fall will be Oct. 25 at Manitowish.

129 GOLFERS START PLAY IN COAST OPEN
Downpour of Rain Makes Possible Winner an Uncertainty

BY PAUL ZIMMERMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—The rain soaked course of the Riviera Country Club today failed to dampen the ardor of 123 tried and proven golfers as they prepared to start their three-day journey through 72 holes of medal play in the fifth annual Los Angeles $10,000 open tournament.

The select field of the country's leading performers of the fairways face the prospect of starting their campaign for the championship now in the possession of MacDonald Smith, Long Island, N. Y., professional, in a downpour of rain. This, coupled with the stubborn 71-par course, with its rugged terrain and changeable ocean winds, presents a formidable obstacle to the contenders.

The somber clouds are not without their silver lining to others of the links stylists. Among them is Walter Hagen, whose record in foreign tournaments under adverse weather conditions has marked him as a strong favorite, should the rain continue.

Joe Kirkwood the Australian trick shot artist, and Olm Dutra, Santa Monica, professional who finished in a tie for the first place money at Long Beach, are conceded to have an advantage because of ability displayed as "mudders."

Certain victory is in prospect for Mr. Par, for under ideal climatic conditions in last year's tournament, Smith was able to finish with no better than even perfect figures when he turned in a 294 for the classic.

Smith will tee off today with two of his prominent opponents—the leading money winner of the nation, Barton Smith, of Joplin, Mo., and Henry Cui, a rising young professional from Bridgeport, Conn.

Phelan May Find Trouble As Washington Coach

BY FRANCIS J. POWERS

C HICAGO—(AP)—Western football observers believe that climatic conditions will force Jimmy Phelan to change his style of play, somewhat, when he prepares the University of Washington eleven for the 1936 campaign.

Phelan, who used the Notre Dame system with his own adaptations, successfully at Purdue, will find the unusual rains that beat over the Pacific northwest, a distinct handicap to that style of football. With most of Washington's home games played in rain or on a heavy field, the Huskies will likely be handicapped in passing, free handling of the ball, and slowed up on all sharp angle plays.

PURDUE, MICHIGAN BASKETEERS MEET SATURDAY NIGHT

Wisconsin Given Only Even Chance to Beat Ohio State at Columbus

C HICAGO—(AP)—A pair of Western conference basketball stars who played as teammates on the Marion, Ind., high school five, will clash tomorrow night when Michigan invades Purdue for the feature of the evening.

Charlie "Stretch" Murphy, Purdue's towering center, will be opposed by Captain Bob Chapman of Michigan, and a great personal struggle is anticipated. Murphy was center and Chapman a forward on the high school team.

Purdue has not started to click as Lambert-coached teams usually do, but probably will be ready for the Wolverines who demonstrated considerable scoring power in defeating Minnesota, 33 to 17, last week. The Bolshakovs will be stronger on manpower than they were against Butler and Montana State, both of which scored victories. Johnny Wooden, a versatile player, was injured in an automobile accident last fall, has recovered and will be expected to start against the co-holders of last year's conference title.

With a victory over Wisconsin already marked down in the book, Northwestern was the choice to defeat Minnesota tomorrow night at Minneapolis. Northwestern's regular guards, Bob Lockhart and Bob McCarnes, have missed most of this week's practice, but the Wild-cats' strength promises to be too much for the Gophers.

Showing steady improvement, Chicago was rated only slightly below Indiana which invades Bartlett gymnasium tomorrow night. The maroons have won three out of five of their pre-season affairs, losing to Butler and Ohio Wesleyan, but have improved with each appearance. Indiana has not made a successful pre-season showing and might join the upset club at the conference. The Ohio State-Wisconsin game at Columbus, promises to be a tight affair, with the Buckeyes rated about an even choice with the advantage of playing on their own court.

RUTH, RUPPERT IN ANNUAL FIGHT
Veteran Slugger Wants Three Year Contract at $85,000 Per Year

BY JOHN B. FOSTER
(Copyright, 1936)

NEW YORK—(CPA)—The first sign of spring came not in the shape of a robin, but in the ponderous, mountainous figure of Babe Ruth—the first holdover of the 1936 baseball season. However, when Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, said that under no condition would he sign a three-year contract with the bawling Bambino, a loophole to a compromise was seen in their controversy over a new contract.

With his three-year contract expired, George Herman Ruth came to Col. Ruppert with a demand for another three-year contract at $85,000 a year. For the last three years he had been drawing the mere sum of $70,000 a year.

Col. Ruppert countered with an offer of $70,000 for a one-year contract and $75,000 for two years.

It is in the length of the contract that a compromise is seen with Ruth perhaps getting a two-year contract, and the Colonel paying less than $85,000.

Of course, George Herman said: "I won't give in this time. They've got to give me a break once, and I've always taken less than I've asked."

And Ed Barrow, secretary of the Yankees said: "It's up to the Babe now."

But things scarcely will look as gloomy as this when the battling practice time rolls around in the south. Ruth, plus wife, will leave for Florida Saturday, and it is expected that before the Yankees start playing Feb. 20, Ruth and the boss will get together and sign a satisfactory contract.

FORMER APPLETON MAN IN BILLIARD TOURNEY

LAWRENCE, H. S. CAGERS PLAY ON FOREIGN COURTS

Shields Using New Attack Tonight; Denney Fears Small Gymnasium

B OTH Lawrence college and Appleton high school basketball teams start north Friday afternoon and evening in quest of basketball victories.

The high school team, however, goes to Green Bay where it battles East in the second conference game of the season. The college had a longer journey to look forward to, one to St. Paul, Minn., where on Saturday evening the team will meet Hamline university five.

Coaches of both aggregations fear the outcome of the games. Shields over at the high school will try a new method of attack tonight against the Bays and if it functions as well as it has in practice sessions, all well and good. If it doesn't, then it will be too bad.

Shields' change in offense revolves about Norbert Berg who will be cavorting at guard instead of forward tonight. The change puts a veteran cager where he can direct the remainder of the team and in a position where he can continually harass opponents with his uncanny eye for the basket. There are several other good candidates for the forward positions, fast youngsters who can shoot and run enemy guards ragged.

Coach Denney of Lawrence college worries most about the Hamline game because it is being played in a small gym, a new bugaboo since the Vikings have started using their huge athletic plant with its big floor.

The Lawrentians have gone through long hard workouts every day this week except Monday when they rested on the laurels they brought home from Milwaukee despite the fact that they lost. The entire squad is in first class condition for Saturday's game.

Hamline has pretty much the same aggregation it boasted of last season and that is plenty. Fans here will not readily forget the thrilling battle the Pipers and Vikings staged, the game being picked out of the fire by a couple sensational shots by Frank Schaefer in the last minute of play.

VILLAGE HIGHS TO MEET FRIDAY

Play Kimberly-Little Chute Basketball Game at Club-house

Kimberly—Every year there is one time when a distinct rivalry is shown between the villages of Kimberly and Little Chute. And that time is when Little Chute high school blue and gold warriors and coach Berger's Red Devils clash in their annual basketball game.

Pep meetings are being held in both schools and both villages are bubbling over with school spirit. Every body that is able to go will be at the Kimberly club house Friday evening with a good pair of lungs and will match cheers with the crowd of spectators that will compass Little Chute's rosters.

In the last two years Kimberly has had the edge but previous to that Little Chute had most of the honors. Coach Berger pins all his faith in one senior, two sophomores and two freshmen. Gunderson's men are all seniors or juniors.

CHUCK SMALLINGS GETS GRID COACHING JOB

LOYOLA TRIES FOR 29TH CAGE VICTORY

Chicago—(AP)—Loyola university will try for its twenty-ninth consecutive basketball victory tonight against South Dakota college, 1929 champions of the North Central conference.

The South Dakota State five received a 38 to 19 beating from De Paul last night, but used its regulars only a few minutes, saving them for the test with the Loyola sharpshooters.

JUNIOR HOCKEY LEAGUE ORGANIZED

First Game Will Be Played Saturday on Jones Park Rink

The first game in the recently organized boys hockey league will be played at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon at Jones park rink. The game will be between the H-Y team and the Third ward, the latter aggregation being captained by Bottino of the high school team.

At a meeting held Wednesday evening the boys completed plans for the league and decided to hold it open to boys under 18 years of age and still in high school. Three 12 minute periods will be played in each game and players are urged to secure hockey skates although no demand will be made they do so.

A list of players on each team will be submitted to officers of the boys department of the Y. M. C. A., who are organizing the league. Names of new players must be submitted one week before the scheduled game.

Six teams will comprise the league. The referees for Saturday's battle will be Chester Davis.

BELOIT MEETS COE CAGERS FRIDAY NIGHT

Beloit—Fresh from their 21-15 victory over Ripon Tuesday night Beloit college cagers are prepared for Coe's invasion on Friday.

Coach Jaggard's quintet has lost only one game and that was a close decision affair to Lawrence, the score being 15-14. The Gold team seemed to hit its stride again Ripon, especially Taylor, who turned in one of the best performances of his career at forward.

The starting lineup against Coe will probably include the two Bottino brothers at guard and forward, Capt. Warren at back guard, Taylor at the other forward position, and Mutchow at center.

MANDELL MEETS CUBAN BOXER AT MIAMI BEACH

Miami Beach, Fla.—(AP)—Light weight champion Sammy Mandell today said he was ready to repulse the left handed thrusts of young Manuel Quintero, Cuban boxer, in the first major ring engagement of the Florida season.

Mandell meets Quintero tonight in a ten round non-title bout at the Miami Beach Kennel club. The champion is favored, although Quintero will be one of the few left handers Mandell has encountered.

New Haven—Bat Battalino, New Haven, knocked out Phil Verde, Rochester, (3).

Sharkey - Scott Battle To Need Much Bally-Hoo

BY JOHN J. ROMANO

NEW YORK—Jack Sharkey and his opponent for his Miami engagement on Feb. 27 and won out over the directors of Madison Square Garden, who thought Tuffy Griffith earned the right to meet the big "1" man from Boston.

Sharkey rightly feels that is Scott heavyweight champion of Great Britain, must be eliminated before he can lay claim to the world's title the sooner he gets by Scott the road will be smoother later on.

Scott, a big fellow who would rather box his opponents, is not the best man Sharkey could fight at this time and it will require a good deal of ballyhoo to put the match over with the fans. The memory of the tugging and holding match last February has not been forgotten by the fans and they will not be overly inclined to accept Scott, despite the fact the latter holds a title and the match comes under the heading of being international in character.

Scott is not as bad as he is painted. He is a good boxer and knows what it is all about. But the Englishman has an annoying habit of holloering "four" on the slightest provocation, so that the fans have labeled him a quitter.

No matter whose toes have been crushed in the scramble to garner the lucrative Florida engagement Scott's selection does not mean that Sharkey will have a walk-away. A boxer bothers Sharkey and Scott, a tall rangy chap with a good left hand, may cause no end of trouble in ten rounds. A limited engagement is all in favor of the Englishman and Sharkey will have to bore in punching fast and furiously if he expects to score a knockout and add glamour to his record.

Unless Sharkey scores a knockout he will be on the short end of the betting if called upon to face Max Schmeling later on.

BIG 10 OFFICIALS INVESTIGATE STATUS OF IOWA ATHLETES

Prof. J. F. A. Pyre of Wisconsin Is a Member of Committee

IOWA CITY, Ia.—(AP)—Hopeful at least for a partial vindication of its efforts toward a wholesale athletic "house cleaning," university of Iowa officials prepared today to receive a committee of three, delegates by the Western conference, to decide the eligibility of 13 Iowa athletes disqualified for participation in a loan fund maintained under the athletic administration of Paul E. Betting.

The 13 athletes were declared ineligible shortly after the conference meeting last December and the Hawkeyes officials accompanied this act with a plea to the conference to send representatives to see "if essential justice has been done."

Iowa officials maintain that the athletes were innocent participants in a fund that had full approval of the athletic administration.

The conference trio, headed by Thomas E. French of Ohio State, was expected late today. French is the only one of the originally named committee who will be here. Prof. Ralph Algier of Michigan is ill and Prof. O. F. Long of Northwestern has left for a European trip.

French's aides are Prof. W. J. Moenkhaus of Indiana, chairman of the conference faculty committee, and Prof. J. F. A. Pyre of Wisconsin.

While the only formal action the committee may take will be to pass on the eligibility of the athletes in question, their decision is expected to have considerable bearing on what Iowa's chances are for reinstatement.

Should they declare the thirteen athletes eligible, it will remove one of the chronic reasons for denying Iowa reinstatement. It would also open the way for another appeal for reinstatement, although Iowa officials deny having contemplated such action. An adverse decision for Iowa would mean the loss of several valuable athletes and probably one of the poorest seasons in spring sports that the Hawkeyes have suffered in many years.

New York—Larry Biello, New York, outpointed Jack Murphy, California, (10).

Only two matches remained to be played today—the Reisel-Layton championship game and an encounter between Kieckhefer and Hall with second place honors at stake.

Denton, Copulos, Jordan and Schuler have completed their schedule of seven games. The other four each have played six matches.

The defeat last night of Augie Kieckhefer, Chicago southpaw, by Tiff Denton, Kansas City veteran, automatically eliminated Kieckhefer and left Layton and Reisel free to fight it out in the final.

Denton, who lost his first three starts in the tournament, conquered Kieckhefer, 50 to 26 in 33 innings for his fourth successive triumph. Earlier in the day Denton had beaten Gus Copulos of Detroit, 50 to 41 in 33 innings. Copulos also lost to Allen Hall, youthful St. Louis star, 60 to 31 in 53 innings. In the other match of the day, Charles Jordan of Los Angeles, recorded his first triumph of the tournament when he defeated Harry Schuler of New York, 50 to 38 in 65 innings.

STAMPS, RABBITS ENTRIGUE CROWDS AT POULTRY SHOW

Stock and Fowl Fanciers Put Their Property on Ex- hibition

New London.—With an exception-day show at Werner's hall. Poultry of varied types are far in the lead of the rabbit entries, due to the fact ing the year. Thursday was given over largely to the arrangement of entries, and their classification. Friday and Saturday will be given over to judging of the exhibits, this work to fall to the share of George M.

Wells, Oshkosh, who will judge poultry and Fred T. Witt, Clintonville, who will particularize in rabbits.

Among the poultry entries the large classification is the Leghorn type. The Wyandottes, White
White Rocks, Rhode Island Reds,
Cochins and Orpingtons are well represented, and there is an excellent showing of various types of bantams.
These miniatures of the chicken family are favorites among the children, one cage of Seabright Golden bantams, winning much comment.
There is a calculated cockiness in the eye and bearing of a bantam rooster, a delightful nonchalance and hauteur in the gait of a sleek bantam hen which wins the admiration of an audience.

Geese and ducks are represented, the honking of great Embden gangers making a deafening sound in the melody of cacklings and crow-ings.

Though the showing is smaller than last year the types of rabbits are a representative collection. With the chinchillas leading in number there are a number of other types.
All entries had been made on Thursday night, but all exhibits were not yet in place.

Those exhibiting from this city this year include R. J. McMahon, Albert Delzer, Herman C. Stichtman, A. Warren Shoemaker, Wallace Hanson, Frank E. Rodgers, Jerome Zaig, Gordon Rohloff, Louis
Elmer, Conrath, Kenneth Febr-man, J. M. Loraack, Gustave
Kraus, Delford Hanke, G. C.
Mrs. Herb Stichtman, Rob-
t. Lamarche, Guy Blonder, Edna
H. Oltida, exhibitors include
Hutchinson, August Yeager,
Knit, George, Irvin and Cle-
Klemp and Herb Steege, Clintonville, E. J. Craig, Boscobel; Hen-del, Appleton; Sylan Bodoh, and John Lindner, Manawa.

Kaukauna News

Wolf Is City Clerk Of Kaukauna For 32 Years

Kaukauna—Elected to the same office 16 times in succession is the record of Louis Wolf, city clerk of Kaukauna for the last 32 years. Every year he has been run for reelection and was the people's choice for the office each time. He also served as an alderman when no pay was connected with the position. When Mr. Wolf was first elected city clerk he had a small room for his office in Legion hall on Oak-st., which at the time contained the city fire department and city hall. About 10 years ago, when the new municipal building was built, the city clerk's office was changed to the new building. The office was greatly enlarged and contained a large vault for important documents, ordinances and papers. Mr. Wolf is in his office daily ready to answer the numerous questions of citizens and to perform his tasks that are the lot of a city clerk.

His long service with the city has made him a valuable person to the community. Persons wishing to look some old ordinance, deed or some motion passed by the council need but to ask the city clerk, who in a few minutes can place the musty documents before them. He knows just where to find them and usually knows about them without consulting the records.

CLINTONVILLE TO FACE LITTLE FIVE FRIDAY EVENING

Kaukauna Team Hopes to Boost Standing in Athletic Conference

Kaukauna—Kaukauna high school basketballers will open their home schedule at 8 o'clock Friday evening against Clintonville high school in the high school auditorium. The local team started its schedule in the Northeastern Wisconsin Inter-scholastic league last week against Shawano and was badly rubbed by the lanky Shawanoites.

Despite the fact that the team lost the opening practices this week showed that the players are determined to make a good start on the home floor. Little has been heard from the railroad city this year, but judging from the games played between the two schools for the last three years the Kaws will have to play some good basketball to win.

Clintonville has a reputation for building fast and shifty teams. Coach Paul E. Little's men will not have to face height as they did last week against Shawano, which brightens the prospect of coming out on the winning side. In previous games with Clintonville the scores were close.

Some changes are expected in the line-up. Miller will probably start at center with Van Dyke and Dix or Sager at the forwards. Captain Ross Farwell and Jack VanLieshout will play guards.

"Ill Health Was Dragging Me Down Fast"

"I Had Been Doctoring for Over A Year When I Learned About Dreco."

"I have the highest praise for Dreco. It relieved me of suffering. I was a wreck and was about ready to give up all hopes of ever getting well again. I was losing weight fast. My appetite had left me. My nerves were very bad and I was no longer able to get any rest at night. Sometimes I would walk the floor at night trying to get some relief from indigestion. Gas used to press up around my heart that made it beat and thump like an old pump. Dreco soon scored in my case and soon I was taking on the weight I had lost. My stomach is lots better and I am able to get some rest at night. I am rapidly improving now and all this praise goes to the new medicine, Dreco." This statement was given by Mr. August Resch, 725 West Winnebago St., Appleton, Wis.

CAMPBELL MAY TAKE UP DUTIES OF VITS

Milwaukee—(AP)—Delegation of the duties of George Vits, Republican national committeeman from Wisconsin, in view of his serious illness.

was seen in political circles here Thursday, with indications pointing to W. J. Campbell, Oshkosh, taking over the task of handling federal patronage for Wisconsin. Conservative Republicans do not want him to resign, for fear of a split in control of the state central committee, political leaders here said. Any split in state central committee power was called inopportune at this time when Wisconsin progressive and farm group adversaries of the conservatives are gaining strength in Washington. A Milwaukee meeting soon to discuss delegation of Mr. Vits' work with him retaining the title, was forecast today.

NON-CUMULATIVE STOCK CAN'T GET ANY BACK EARNINGS

Opinion Is Reiterated in Wabash Case by U. S. Supreme Court

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright 1930 by Post-Crescent
Wall Street, New York. — Again the legal verdict is that the holder of a non-cumulative preferred stock has no proprietary interest over earnings of a company that may not have been paid to him within the period of regular dividends. This opinion has been pronounced by the United States supreme court in the case affecting back dividends on Wabash Railroad preferred "A" shares, and in substance, it follows the decisions of other courts in similar situations.

One of the latter was that created by the holders of the 3 per cent preferred stock of the Southern Railway who carried on a long and bitter contest with the management of that road to compel them to disgorge $29,000,000 of accumulated dividends which they argued rightfully belonged to them. Their claims were not sustained by the lower courts and after a long legal siege on the Southern Railway the preferred shareholders capitulated.

They did not lose, however, the entire moral value of their fight which dealt with the period from July 1, 1925, to June 1925, for they were subsequently given the privilege of subscribing, with common stockholders, for a new issue of $10,000,000 of common stock on the same basis as holders of the junior shares.

POSITION AGGRAVATING
The position of the owner of a non-cumulative preferred stock frequently has been an aggravating one where holders of junior securities have been allowed to skim the cream from the returns of a property which the senior shareholder felt he had done most to develop. The courts, however, have been unfriendly to every effort on his part to get more than "nominal" in dividends. One of the historical cases of this sort was that presented a quarter of a century ago by the Union Pacific 4 per cent shareholders and, like all the others, lost.

There is also a similarity in the attitude of the non-cumulative preferred shareholder to the holder of the adjustment or income bonds, whose interest payment has frequently been made a question of management policy toward applying earnings for capital improvements rather than following what might be considered the strict application of these earnings to interest payments. Here, also, there have been numerous legal contentions over the part of the adjustment bond holder.

HOLMES WRITES DECISION
The decision in the Wabash preferred "A" stock case was written by Justice Holmes. It leaves little room for future contests by other preferred shareholders with similar grievances. It also may have a tendency to dampen the enthusiasm of investors who buy preferred stocks rather than common stocks or bonds, for it clearly indicates that the holder of senior shares is not entitled to anything more than the rate stipulated in the contract drawn up by the company.

In order to make their preferred shares more attractive, corporations, more in the past than at present, made them cumulative, so that back dividends on the senior issue had to be paid up before the sinking fund in bonds, has frequently led to commitment by companies to a liability which in hard times they found difficult to meet. So there are today a considerable number of industrial companies particularly that have been struggling for years to repay the dividends on their preferred stocks that had to be suspended during a period of business reaction.

The paragraph in the decision of Justice Holmes which establishes the status of the non-cumulative preferred stockholder follows:

"We believe that it has been the common understanding of lawyers and businessmen that in the case of non-cumulative stock entitled only to a dividend if declared out of annual profits, if those profits are justifiably applied by the directors to capital improvements and no dividend is declared within a year, the claim for that year is gone and cannot be asserted at a later date."

Men Of Stone Age Still Are Living In Australia

Sydney, Australia. — In remote Australia, untouched by civilization, man still exists in the stone age. A few years more and the opportunity he presents for scientific study will probably have gone.

Under the auspices of the Rockefeller institute and at the invitation of the Australian Scientific Research Association a party headed by Dr. Porteus, professor of racial physiology of the University of Hawaii, Dr. Paul Whittington of Honolulu, and Ralph King, a photographer, have, by penetrating inland from the far north-west coast of the continent, obtained over 25,000 feet of extraordinary valuable films and a mass of data.

The natives were shy and hostile, and several times spears were thrown at the party, but no serious opposition was met. Great difficulty was encountered in coming into contact with the natives, but films of high scientific value were obtained, mainly at Osborne island. Here the native through whom they gradually gained the confidence of the inhabitants who had taken to the bush, but who drifted back in bunches and dropped their weapons as a sign of friendship.

Mr. King who has been on many expeditions and who has studied the customs of the natives of Tibet, Africa, China and Peru, says never before was he so fascinated and often he became so interested that he forgot to operate his camera. The expedition also made a large collection of native birds, animals, and reptiles for scientific purposes.

In Western Queensland the expedition came to an unfortunate conclusion when Dr. Whittington's hand was poisoned by a piece of rusty wire. Under the greatest difficulties he was rushed by air and rail 2,500 miles to Sydney for special treatment. His life was saved, but he was on the point of death several times en route.

TESTS TO VARY MILK'S MINERAL CONTENT FAIL
Madison. — (P) — Protracted tests to vary the mineral content of milk by selective feeding of cattle have apparently failed, according to C. A. Elvehjem and E. B. Hart, agricultural chemists at the University of Wisconsin.

The chemists said tests have been made with copper and iron compounds but that like the addition of lime and phosphorus, the mineral composition of the milk had remained constant.

"The practical significance of the negative results," according to Mr. Hart, "lies in the implication that amelia in the suckling stage cannot be prevented by feeding the mother more iron and copper."

To find whether there were other chemical substitutes that could replace copper in the rebuilding of hemoglobin, the oxygen carrying compound, in red blood cells, J. Wadell, Harry Steenback and E. B. Hart, all chemists at the Wisconsin college of agriculture, used 12 other elements.

Intensive study revealed that copper alone has the ability to stimulate the building of hemoglobin. The other 12 elements that were tried are manganese, cobalt, nickel, zinc, mercury, chromium, germanium, arsenic, antimony, tin and cadmium.

"Arsenic gave a slightly favorable action, but in no case was there a definite and constant response when any of the 12 elements were substituted," Mr. Hart reported.

AMERICA WOULD INCREASE MARKET OF TOILET GOODS

United States Now Is Foremost Producer of Beautifiers

BY J. C. ROYLE
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
Washington.—Large sales of toilet preparations during the holiday season have focussed the attention of American chemical manufacturers on the possibilities of increasing markets both at home and abroad for beautifiers of all kinds. Use of beautifiers has shown a steady increase in late years. The United States today rates as the foremost producer of toilet preparations in the world, according to the department of commerce. This has been true because of the extraordinary demand from the American people.

The value of cosmetics for the skin, hair, nails or eyes manufactured in this country amounts to more than $25,000,000 a year, according to Arthur D. Little Inc. chemists and industrial engineers. Talc does not take into account perfumes, medicated products taken internally or applied externally or to let soaps. The country spent more than $75,000,000 for soap in 1929 and is the leading consumer. Of cosmetics made here all but about $2,000,000 worth are used at home.

Despite this extraordinary consumption, the per capita use of cosmetics is less than half that of the French people. France is also one of the largest markets for hair oils, lotions, hair tonics and other hair preparations.

FRANCE HEAVY USER
Manufacturers say the consumption in France indicates that a similar use can be built up here and in other countries accustomed to look to the United States for the bulk of their imports.

Manufacturers declare that the improvement of modern preparations from a chemical and hygienic standpoint can be relied on to increase their use and scores of chemists are engaged in experiments. There have been notable improvements in facial preparations, since pigments formerly used were often based on lead, antimony or zinc. Modern cosmetics, they say are generally harmless. Little change has come in one line—that of cold cream. This preparation is nearly 2,000 years old and resulted from Cleopatra's discovery that water could be worked into a grease cream to advantage. Most manufacturers are working with physicians and dermatologists to purify their preparations and render them beneficial rather than harmful.

This is also the case with the manufacturers of women's clothing, especially lingerie and corsets. In nine months of 1929 exports of corsets, bras and girdles from this country amounted to nearly $1,500,000, and there is evidence that the demand abroad for this type of American goods is growing although both France and Great Britain do an excellent export trade in corsets.

The trend toward so-called European dress in the countries of the far east and near east is having a decided effect in broadening the demand for such articles, as well as silk stockings and underwear. It is estimated that total American production of corsets in the last year exceeded $85,000,000. This was a decided gain over 1925 and is attributed to the change of style in women's outer garments.

RUTH BRYAN OWEN IS FACING SEAT CONTEST

Washington. — Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, Democrat, Florida, and William C. Lawson, Republican, who is contesting her seat for the Fourth Florida district, were summoned to appear before a house elections committee Saturday, when hearings are to begin.

Lawson charges that Mrs. Owen, a widow of Reginald Alltray Owen, a British army officer, failed to come within the constitutional requirements for membership in the house because of her citizenship.

ONLY HANDFUL OF MEN INTERESTED IN LATEST METEOR

Situation Would Have Been Exactly Reversed Few Years Ago

New York — (C.P.A.)— There is only a handful of men who consider the meteor that flashed and roared over Cleveland as more than an incident of last week. But those men whose interest still is claimed by the fiery body shall not forget it for many years. They are scientists who now are attempting to learn from it the secrets of a universe so vast that the earth is merely a pin point in comparison.

Oddly enough, if such a glare and rumble startled the people of this planet 200 years ago—and they did many times—the situation would have been reversed, the public would have been uneasy, but the one group which would have gone on unperturbed would have been the scientists.

It was not until the end of the eighteenth century that the scific world deigned to admit the existence of meteorites.

Despite the scientific scoffers, however, meteorites persisted in disturbing the public consciousness as they had done since history began. One of the earliest accounts of their importance relative how the people of Phrygia enshrined a small one that fell nearby and worshipped it for many years. Then an oracle told the Roman emperor that his kingdom would enjoy prosperity so long as it was in Roman possession. What might have resulted in a war was averted when King Attalus gave over the stone to the Romans who took it with much pomp and ceremony to Rome in 204 B. C.

A portion at least of the fervor of the great Salem witchcraft inquiry can be traced to the fall of meteorites. It was the Rev. Increase Sather, who pointed out that meteoric danger was evidence of the wrath of God.

No doubt those were wondrous times. Yet only four years ago C. E. Grant reported to a Sacramento, Calif., newspaper that Martians had made the journey to earth on a meteorite.

Two years ago Prof. Leonide Kulik of Moscow while reading casually the notes of folklore printed on the bottom of his desk calendar, found a paragraph concerning an immense fall of iron twenty years before in Siberia. He organized an expedition to investigate it.

On the morning of July 30, 1928, he discovered a "dazzling body" accompanied by a "thundering detonation heard 100 miles away, fall between the Yenisei and Lena rivers. "Natives walking thirty or forty kilometers away were lifted in the air by the concussion, together with tents and cattle." An immense forest area was instantly set afire and 1,500 reindeer were killed.

BANK OF ENGLAND FAILS TO REDUCE REDISCOUNT RATE

Sterling Exchange Has Moved Too Far Away from Gold Point

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
Wall Street—London's bankers who had been depending on a reduction Thursday in the Bank of England's discount rate to 4 1/2 per cent to bolster up their commitments were disappointed when the cables from London brought word before the opening of the market that the governors of the English institution had decided to make no change, although from every quarter on Wednesday there were positive predictions that the rediscunt rate would be lowered.

This action seemed to be one of experience rather than a result of any new developments in the London money market. As a matter of fact the Bank of England statement today made a great gain over that of last week in showing an increase in gold of more than $15,000,000 and a reserve ratio of 35 per cent compared with less than 23 per cent the week previous. London is as anxious as New York to establish her money market on an easy basis not only to benefit domestic trade but to improve the market for new offerings of foreign securities out of which England usually gets some reciprocal values in the way of exports of British manufactured products.

PROHIBITS EXPORTS

The fact that sterling exchange has been declining sharply of late and has now moved so far away from the gold point as to prohibit further exports from the United States and thereby bring a temporary check to the rebuilding of the Bank of England gold holdings, may have had something to do with the day's decision on the bank rate, which is still out of line with London open market rates. All foreign exchanges have been conspicuously weak until Thursday, when there was some rally. Compared with the high level established toward the end of December there is now a decidedly weak aspect not only to exchange on London but in the rates of Dutch, Swiss, German, French and Scandinavian exchanges. The collapse in Spanish exchange has been one of the notable features of the international money market during the past week. Although Thursday's rates were higher in New York they touched a new low record in London. Spanish exchange is now below any rate quoted since 1898. Its quotation has been affected by the political disturbances in Spain but bears a relation to the financial operations growing out of the recent loan made by the government and particularly as this affects the peseta and the pound sterling.

Spain has come into prominence the last few days along with China, India and Mexico as a country whose political and financial conditions are both in disorder, with the one having a marked bearing on the other. The low price of silver was up again a disturbing factor today in the far eastern situation and has been responsible for a loss of $5,000,000 to the Chinese government. Recently an American banking commission made a study of Chinese finances with the idea of recommending a program of currency stabilization such as has been put into effect in some of the South American and Central American countries and in Poland. This would eventually lead to bringing the group of nations whose currency is on a gold basis. Owing to years of political disturbance and industrial depression it is realized that the transition will be slower in China than in any of the other countries that have adopted the recommendations of this commission.

Missouri Profs Upheld In Sex Questionnaire Inquiry

breach of the principles of free teaching and research and security of tenure in the university." All charges made against the professors were denied by the committee. These, in addition to allegations that the list of questions tended to cause moral laxity, were the results could not produce any scientific conclusion and that it "tended to create the condition that it is alleged to correct."

"Professor DeGraff testified," the report said, "that as a student adviser he had been frequently consulted by students about the very issues that are raised in this questionnaire concerning the sex code and the moral ideals that are involved in engagement and marriage. The students testified that these problems of the sex code and of morals, engagement and marriage, are frequently discussed frankly, not only in fraternity and sorority houses, but also by the girls with their boy friends."

ORGANIZE CLASS IN PAPER TESTING

A class in paper testing was organized Tuesday afternoon at Patton Paper, Ltd. for employees of the plant, by A. W. Bouffard, itinerant coordinator of the pulp and paper industry at Appleton vocational school. The class will meet every Tuesday from 1:30 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon for 12 weeks, according to Mr. Bouffard. The theory and practical application of paper testing will be studied.

11 FIRMS TO FURNISH STATE WITH CEMENT

Madison—(P)—The state's 1930 cement requirements for highways will be filled by 11 firms, according to a statement given out by the highway commission. All quantities are approximate and the contracts are subject to an increase or decrease by the commission. The proposals submitted by the mills indicate that the mill base is 20 cents lower than any previous price quoted to the state, the commission reported.

The proposals are on a net mill base of $1.40 at Buffington, Ind., and Mason City, Ia., and a net mill base of $1.45 at Steelton, Minn. Contracts in all cases were awarded to the lowest bidder. The firm and the number of barrels of cement they will furnish are: Universal Portland Cement Co., 402,010; Manitowoc Portland Cement company, 335,900; Marquette Cement Manufacturing company, 141,700; Lehigh Portland Cement company, 125,125; Petoskey Portland Cement company, 106,500; Western Lime and Cement company, 91,700; Atlas Portland Cement company, 81,200; Newaygo Portland Cement company, 62,900; Cutler-Magner company, 39,700; Alpha Portland Cement company, 31,600; and Medusa Portland Cement company, 21,100.

The contracts awarded aggregated more than 1,500,000 barrels of cement which will cost the state more than $3,000,000.

The Secret of Mohawk Pond

SYNOPSIS: Terrifying experiences introduce Peggy Prescott to life at Yew Lodge where she is determined to live for a month to gain the fortune left by her uncle, Herbert Prescott. His will stipulates she must live at his Connecticut estate for a month with only a servant, never leaving it for more than an hour or forfeit the legacy. Suspecting Sundown, an Indian, of being the silent figure who greeted her at the lodge and then vanished, and of capsizing her canoe, Peggy calls at the Indian's camp but he is absent. Her suspicions are partly allayed when she learns of Sundown's reputed "night-blindness."

not troubling to mount again, let the horse follow him to the round stone tower some distance away.

The wide wooden door that gave entrance to the tower stood open, and Stanton entered the home of Aquila Chase without ceremony. His catlike tread on the stairs to the floor above had not disturbed Aquila, busily writing, and Stanton noiselessly swung himself up to the floor through the trap door and sat with his feet dangling down through the opening watching Chase write steadily on, unconscious of his visitor's presence.

It was striking seven when Stanton broke the silence.

"Writing your life history?" he asked.

Chase's violent start overturned a small ink bottle.

"No harm done," he declared. "Where did you spring from, Ed?"

"Sharon," briefly. "I came up to look over the old place. Clark wants to go to the city, so I am hunting another caretaker. Can you put me up, Aquila, for a week, say?"

Chase looked at him dubiously.

"Oh, certainly," but his tone lacked warmth.

"I'll bring up my duds," Stanton called as he scurried down the steps.

Chase had dinner ready when his guest returned and they satisfied their hunger.

Their conversation was desultory and then Stanton asked.

"Have you met Prescott's niece?"

"Yes," Chase eyed his companion steadily for a few minutes. "She is very charming and," as an afterthought, "very rich."

Stanton laid down the stub of his cigar.

"Is she?" he questioned softly.

"She has a month and a day to qualify under the terms of her uncle's will and the time is not up yet. If she is absent from Yew Lodge for over one hour in any 24, the money goes to Jameson Sinclair."

Chase's mild blue eyes opened wide.

"Very curious," he commented. "Philander is much interested in Miss Prescott and very much worried by her isolated position at Yew Lodge. He has written to suggest that she engage a trained nurse as companion."

"But she has a maid."

"An ignorant colored girl," Chase's disapproval was obvious. "My brother is right; Miss Prescott should not remain longer without proper companionship. Her nearest neighbor is Obadiah Evans."

Stanton ran his fingers through his hair until it stood upright.

"And Sundown," he pointed out, smiling significantly.

Chase stirred uneasily in his chair. "The half breed was devoted to her uncle."

"But suppose Sundown regards Miss Prescott as an interloper? He looks on the land around Mohawk Pond as his; I've heard him boast as much to Prescott when drunk."

Pushing back his chair, Chase rose, a troubled look in his eyes.

"You suggest pleasant possibilities," he said. "Do you know why Prescott did not wish his niece to be absent from Yew Lodge over an hour at a time?"

"I-- Stanton swallowed hard--I haven't an idea." He gathered up the soiled pans and dishes. "I'll wash these at the brook," and he bolted from the tower.

For a long minute the botanist stood staring at the open door, his thoughts in a turmoil--that Edgar Stanton had lied in answering his last question he had not the faintest doubt.

Tragedy enters Yew Lodge in tomorrow's installment to jeopardize Peggy's fortune and her future.

Stockholders Hold Annual Meeting in Common Council Chambers

J. L. Jacquot was reelected president of the Appleton Building and Loan association at the annual meeting in the council chambers of the city hall Thursday evening. The election of officers occurred at a special meeting of the board of directors, immediately following the annual stockholders session.

Other officers elected are: John R. Beckley, vice president; George H. Beckley, secretary; Miss Lucille Julge, assistant secretary, and E. C. Hilfert, treasurer. The president appointed the following committees: Auditing, H. A. Gloudehans, John R. Diderich and Homer H. Benton; appraisal committee, D. P. Steinberg, Phillip Weinfenbach, and J. J. Plan; Homer Benton, Alfred Bosser and Roger Tuttrup were selected as the company's attorneys for the coming year.

APPROVE APPLICATIONS

Applications for loans totalling $17,000 were approved. It also was decided to hold the next regular meeting of directors at 7:30 Thursday evening, Feb. 13.

A report of the history, purpose and progress of the association was submitted by Mr. Gloudehans, chairman of the auditing committee. In his review it was brought out that the association was organized in 1918, that it has had over 10 years of successful business operations, finishing the year 1929 with assets of $1,767,383.26.

Mr. Gloudehans' report also showed that the reserves of the association had been increased by $3,462.63, making a total surplus of $22,774.75. Mr. Hilfert read the financial statement of the association, giving in detail the operating receipts and disbursements. His report revealed the association transacted a total business last year of $1,297,257.45. Both Mr. Gloudehans' and Mrs. Hilfert's reports were well received by stockholders and their facts and figures were verified by the E. A. Detman Co., certified public accountants.

BECKLEY'S REPORT

Mr. Beckley, secretary, expressed his appreciation of the loyal support given by stockholders of the community. His report disclosed the information that 1,986 members made up of 1,010 paid up and 976 installment shareholders respectively, owned the association on Dec. 31, 1929 with its assets of $1,767,383.26.

He also brought out the fact that $27,346 had been paid by the borrowers to apply on their mortgages and that the association through its dividends had added to this sum $42,484. He also reported that the association had paid $319,372 in dividends to investors since its organization; $185,152 being mailed to those holding paid up shares and $134,220 added to passbooks.

The terms of Mr. Steinberg, Mr. Weinfenbach and Mr. Diderich, directors, expired. They were reelected to succeed themselves for the ensuing three years.

ENTRIES NUMEROUS IN POULTRY SHOW

Judging of Poultry and Rabbits Is Completed on Friday

BY W. F. WINSEY

New London—Despite the blizzard sweeping the country roads Thursday, the setting up day of the second annual Poultry and Rabbit show in Werner hall, under auspices of the New London Rotary club poultry and rabbit fanciers from the rural districts registered 50 per cent more entries than last year. R. J. McMahon, chairman of the show committee, H. B. Cristy and G. W. Werner hustled all day to put the final touches on the entries and to direct exhibitors to show crates. Up to 3 o'clock in the afternoon 175 entries of poultry had been made and 50 entries of rabbits.

The show room was open to the public Friday, and Saturday exhibits may be seen from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. The admission is 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children. Music will be furnished by the high school band and Glee clubs. On Friday afternoon, J. E. Hayes, poultry specialist of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture discusses the problems of poultry raising and County Agent Gus Sell spoke on Better Farming, Especially Poultry Raising. On Saturday C. A. Gelboe, Appleton, is to discuss Rabbits for Profit. Two hundred dollars worth of attendance prizes will be given away.

The poultry judging was done Friday by George M. Wells, Oshkosh, and the Rabbit judging by Fred T. Witt, Clintonville.

Talks To Parents

FAITHLESS FRIENDS

By Alice Judson Peale

Anyone who deals with children knows they are often cruel and faithless in their relations with each other.

Today's bosom friend is tomorrow's sworn enemy and there is none of the glossing of facts that characterizes similar phases of adult relationships.

Perhaps one of the hardest things about growing up is learning not to mind too much when your very best friend gives you the cold shoulder for a newcomer.

Michael, for instance, adores Leo, who is three years his senior. Usually Leo can be depended upon to be loyal to his small friend and to stand by him when need arises, but now and then he gets bored with him and in a manner of speaking throws him to the wolves in the controversies of the block. Then there is tragedy and Michael tastes an ancient disillusionment.

Yet this is an experience from which his parents would not shield him if they could. They consider it an excellent preparation for life.

When your child comes to you for consolation because his best friend has thrown him over it is probably mistaken kindness to explain away his friend's defection.

It is better to help him understand that not only children but grown-ups are apt to behave this way, that indeed there are not many people on whom one can depend in all weathers, and that the sensible thing to do is not to worry about it but to set about doing something amusing and finding other playmates.

AT DINNER FOR HUSTON

Chicago — (AP)—Carl A. Johnson, Madison manufacturer, was among those attending a dinner of midwestern Republicans attending a dinner here last night for Claudius Huston, new national chairman.

WATERTOWN BOARD IS STILL AFTER OPINION

Madison — (AP)—The board of police and fire commissioners at Watertown, Wis., will have to seek opinions on their rights from authorities other than the attorney general's office, according to information from that office.

The board recently announced that it would ask the attorney general whether it had the privilege of discharging Charles Pieritz, Watertown chief of police, on the complaint of the mayor.

At the attorney general's office it was said that municipal questions are not within the jurisdiction of the state department. Only on matters of law laid before the attorney general by district attorneys or state officers can a ruling be made. Since the question at Watertown is not within the jurisdiction of the district attorney, it will be impossible to secure a ruling from the attorney general.

STOCK RECOVERY SET BACK AGAIN BY PROFIT TAKING

Early Gains of One to Seven Points Cut Down and Even Wiped Out

BY STANLEY W. FRENOSIL
New York (AP)—Heavy profit taking impeded the resumption of the recovery in today's stock market, although operators for the advance continued to retain the advantage. Early gains of 1 to nearly 7 points were cut down, and in a few cases wiped out and converted into moderate declines. Trading, which started off at a brisk pace, turned dull in the early afternoon.

An increase of nearly 300,000 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation was the most important business development of the day. The gain, however, probably was due to a shutting down of operations last month rather than to any unusual increase in demand. U. S. Steel common, which advanced 2 1/4 points to 173 1/4 in the early trading, practically lost all of its gain in the wave of profit taking which followed the announcement, but soon closed 172 1/4.

Sloss Sheffield Steel ran up 5 points.

Wall money renewed unchanged at 4 1/2 per cent. The supply of new funds was not so plentiful, and it looked as though the rate would be maintained instead of being dropped to 4 per cent as it has in the three preceding sessions. The time money market was quiet.

Despite the optimistic statements coming from automobile executives attending the annual motor show here, the automotive industry, continued heavy. Nash, Chrysler, Hudson, Packard, Buick, Ford, and General Motors all showed a point or more, while Auburn lost its early gain of 5 1/4 points by early afternoon.

Western Union, which soared 1 1/2 points yesterday, fell back 5 1/2 today and American Machine and Foundry, which closed yesterday with a gain of 5 1/2 points, was hammered down 7 3/4 today. International Silver fell back 7 points and American and Foreign Power, Simons, and Firestone Tire, Fox Film and Andes Copper lost 2 points, or more.

American Zinc preferred ran up more than 6 points, Otis Elevator 5, and Houston Oil, J. I. Case, Columbia, and Allied Chemical and Louisville and Nashville advanced 3 points or more.

Much of the late buying centered in leading industrials. U. S. Steel touched 173 again and American common and American Foreign Power responded briskly to margin runners. National Electric, Gold Dust, Coca Cola and Gulf Mobile & Northern rose substantially. The close was firm. Sales approximated 2,400,000 shares.

LOSSES FORCED ON SELLERS OF HOGS

Prices Retreat Slightly from Yesterday's Figure at Today's Opening

Chicago (AP)—Hog prices retreated slightly at the start this morning. The sellers who held back 10,000 hogs yesterday in hopes of a further advance today, were mistaken in their tactics, and were forced to sell at a generally 10¢ lower price. Choice light hogs and light butchers, sold between 9.30 and 10.00 early, at a 2¢ loss from the top figure yesterday. Excellent rail service moved all but 30 cars of livestock into market on time, and the effects of the storm were minimized. Arrivals today of 23,000 were 5,000 larger than last week, which saw an abnormally small run, but were tiny compared to the 61,000 a year ago. An impressive factor, the total supply of the eleven important markets, 116,900 today against 84,200 last Friday, with the river markets all having good runs.

Cattle supplies were small, even for a Friday, and at the start of a strong undertone prevailed. Sellers were jubilant over the storm, expecting short receipts for next week, and held out for better prices. Packers, shippers were both slow to come into the market at advanced prices, although there was no hope of later decline. Sales in heavy steer division started off with the advance yesterday when the top moved to $16.00 in the late trade. Receipts at the important centers of 10,000 were the same as last week, although Chicago has only half the run it had last Friday.

Anticipating meager supplies for the next few days, sheep men asked more than they received yesterday for their supplies with a good chance of getting it. The market was well cleaned up and in good shape to move ahead today at better than $11.50 for the best of the fat lambs.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

RAILROADS ARE NOT PUSHING PLANS TO ACQUIRE NEW LINES

Officials Apparently Are Awaiting Recovery of Stock Market

BY J. C. BOYLE

Washington—Plans for purchase of new equipment by the railroads and for acquisition of new roads and buildings of new lines are not being pushed.

They are awaiting recovery of the stock market. That fact has become evident through the reports made available Wednesday at the interstate commerce commission. Applications for permission to issue new securities, the proceeds from which would be used for the purposes indicated above, are few and far between.

They are not likely to increase until the stock market shows a marked improvement. On this account the railroad executives are watching Wall Street closely and government officials are no whit less observing.

Whether the slump in stock values has caused the drop in earnings which has been experienced by the class I carriers, it is at least certain from late figures that such a drop has taken place. During the first nine months of 1929 car loadings were in excess of those for the corresponding months of 1928, month for month, but when the stock prices fell, so did loadings. In October 4,671,373 cars were loaded as compared with 4,703,832 in October 1928. November loadings dropped from 5,144,268 in 1928 to 4,891,835. In December the loadings were approximately 50,000 cars a week less than in the previous year.

The excess freight cars in repair and available showed an increase of 19,507 from Nov. 30. These figures point to an unmistakable drop in freight traffic and a reduction in revenues. Passenger traffic, it is shown by the commission also has fallen off. Commission officials fully anticipate, what with a drop in car loadings, an increase in excess cars and a diminution in passenger traffic, that the carriers will proceed with utmost caution in making new equipment purchases, despite the statements made when President Hoover called the railroad executives together and they outlined their purchasing programs.

FEW SECURITIES ISSUED
In the year just ended the commission authorized the issue of $1,401,359,073 in railroad securities. This was a drop of more than $400,000,000 as compared with 1928. The heavy year of 1928 was caused largely by the permission to issue more than $700,000,000 in securities incident to the reorganization of the old Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul. But since the middle of October few applications for such permissions have been made, the total reaching only about $20,000,000. Few applications are pending.

The 1929 year was a heavy one when measured by issue of equipment trust certificates. The total exceeded $126,000,000 and was double that of 1928. New equipment needed will have to be financed. It is not being bought because the stock market is not in such shape as to make such financing advantageous. Until this condition is bettered, the full extent of the railroad equipment purchases cannot be felt by the industries affected and the public at large.

Net income of the carriers has fallen off. This trend, it is felt at the commission, has continued throughout December and they fear it may bring the total railroad net revenues for the year down to or beneath the level for 1928.

"KONJOLA MADE LIVING WORTH WHILE TO ME"

Sionx City Young Lady Glad to Pay Tribute to New and Different Medicine

MISS STELLA ADAMS

"Konjola made living worth while to me, after I had suffered for years trying medicine after medicine in a vain search for the one I needed," said Miss Stella Adams, 711 Main St., Sionx City. "My stomach and kidneys were in bad condition, and constipation fairly saturated my system with impurities. Whatever I ate caused distress. My back was sore and my feet swelled and burned. I became exceedingly nervous and irritable."

"But Konjola lost no time in going to the very causes of my troubles. Constipation was quickly relieved, and then my digestion improved. I took in all just three bottles of Konjola, but that was enough. I am feeling simply fine, and am gaining strength right along. I hope, for their sake, that my endorsement will guide others to this wonderful medicine."

Konjola is sold in Appleton at Schintz Bros. Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Hoover Greet Mexican President

Friendly honors were extended to the Mexican government by the government of the United States when President Ortiz Rubio of Mexico was greeted on his arrival in Washington by President Hoover. ment however, are only postponed, not abandoned. The volume of buying will come just as soon as the time is opportune for the marketing of new securities. There is every evidence also that the roads affected are taking preliminary steps to line up along the lines indicated in the railroad consolidation plans outlined by the commission.

Applications for permission to become directors of certain roads filed with the commission have given indication in a rough way as to which of the great financial houses of the country will finance some of the various systems in the east.
